'Holiday Comet' To Be In View For Christmas

NEW YORK (AP) — A "holiday comet" is racing through the solar system toward the sun. From mid-November to late January, people throughout the world will be able to watch what astronomers say may be the most spectacular comet of the century.

When the comet was discovered last March 7 between the orbits of Jupiter and Mars, it was very much brighter than other comets seen at that great distance from the sun—a half billion miles.

With scientists now alerted, plans are under way to make the comet the most extensively studied so far, including studies to be made by the Skylab 3 astronauts, orbiting above the earth's obscuring atmosphere.

The comet is named Comet Kohoutek, after its discoverer, Dr. Lubos Kohoutek at the Hamburg Observatory in Bergedorf, West Germany.

Comet Kohoutek will orbit the sun Dec. 28 at 250,000 miles an hour, approaching to within 13 million miles of it after having crossed the orbit of the earth on Nov. 26.

Experts believe that at its closest approach to the sun the comet will be the most brilliant object in the night sky, vastly brighter than the famous Halley's comet of 1910.

An easily seen comet is rare. It has a fuzzy head surrounding a bright nucleus, and as its orbit approaches the sun the comet forms a long tail pointing away from the sun because of radiation pressure.

Briefing reporters on the comet Thursday, Dr. Kenneth L. Franklin, chairman of the American Museum-Hayden Planetarium, said:

"We are indeed going to have a good bright comet, a beautiful holiday comet, a very nice holiday comet."

Precisely how bright the comet will be will have to await observation. But it should be bright enough by mid-November to be seen rising about three hours before the sun.

As it moves closer and becomes brighter, the comet will rise closer to sunrise. After orbiting the sun, Comet Kohoutek will be seen in the western sky after sunset until late January.

Mao's Health Deteriorating; Power Struggle Seen

WASHINGTON (AP) — Mao Tse Tung is in deteriorating health as radical supporters and rival moderates maneuver for an upcoming battle over control of the Chinese Communist party, according to U.S. intelligence reports.

Intelligence accounts say Mao, 79, the party chairman, has suffered periodic memory blackouts and deeply suspects those around him. He is said to be under the care of seven doctors.

Chiang Ching, his wife, is said to be leading the radicals in the fight for dominance of the new Central Committee and Politburo, which will rule the Chinese Communist Party in years ahead.

American intelligence analysts say the 10th Congress of the Chinese Communist Party, expected this month or in September, will see a battle by Mao's leftist supporters to stem their gradual loss of power to the moderates usually associated with Premier Chou En Lai.

If the Maoist-leftist faction should win, the trend toward liberalization in Chinese foreign policy, economics, science and education would be slowed or even turned around, U.S. experts say.

Such a development would have important implications for U.S.-Chinese relations, which have thawed over the past 18 months.

One of the preliminary skirmishes that reportedly is being fought involves the future of scientists who have been accused of political deviation.

Intelligence sources say Chou En Lai wants to rehabilitate such scientists on grounds that political orthodoxy should not be a condition for allowing them to work in their specialties, since China needs all the scientific expertise it can get.

But Chiang Ching and her radical followers are described as strongly opposing such rehabilitation.

Trucker Charged In Fatal Crash

SUMMERSVILLE, W.Va. (AP) — An Ohio truck driver was charged with two counts of negligent homicide Thursday in connection with a traffic accident in which two Nicholas County youths were killed.

State police said Danny Murphy, 18, and Richard L. Stull, 16, both of Fenwick, were killed Thursday when the motorcycle they were riding was struck broadside at an intersection of Appalachian Corridor L and a secondary road.

The driver of the tractor-trailer truck, David G. Lane of Lima, Ohio, was charged with failure to yield right-of-way and with two counts of negligent homicide, police said.

Weather

Partly cloudy through Saturday with chance of thundershowers mainly in the afternoon and evening. High today, low 80s; low tonight, mid 60s. High Saturday low 80s. Chance of rain, 40 per cent today, 30 per cent tonight and tomorrow.

Magruder Pleads Guilty To Conspiracy Count

WASHINGTON (AP) — Jeb Stuart Magruder, a star witness before the Senate Watergate committee and a key witness in the case federal prosecutors are building, has pleaded guilty to a single conspiracy charge.

Magruder, looking tanned and fit after a European vacation with his family, entered his guilty plea during a brief appearance Thursday in U.S. District Court. He also acknowledged he had agreed to be a government witness in any future Watergate trials.

Magruder waived his right to have his case considered by the grand jury and pleaded to an information filed by the special prosecutor's office. It charged him with conspiracy to wiretap, to obstruct justice and to defraud the United States.

He was the second former presidential campaign aide who agreed to cooperate with the government. Frederick C. LaRue pleaded guilty to a single conspiracy charge June 27.

The charge carries a maximum penalty of five years in prison and a $10,000 fine. There is no minimum penalty.

The details filed by the prosecutors in support of their conspiracy charge against the 38-year-old Magruder, former deputy director of the Nixon reelection committee, hinted at cases the government is developing.

One act described as part of the conspiracy to obstruct justice was "that certain co-conspirators would misrepresent that the Central Intelligence Agency had an interest in limiting the investigation."

Magruder was not specifically listed as being among those un-named co-conspirators.

The government information also alleged that Herbert L. Porter, former scheduling director for the campaign committee, lied on the witness stand at the Watergate trial.

Porter, along with Magruder, had admitted during testimony before the Senate Watergate committee that he had lied in an effort to cover up involvement of presidential campaign aides in the June 17, 1972, Watergate break-in.

A spokesman for the prosecutor's office declined to comment when asked if Porter had agreed to cooperate with the government.

Nixon Won't Expand On Answers

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon junked a voluminous Watergate statement because he feared it would prolong the Senate investigating committee's televised hearings, sources report.

The sources, who are in a position to know the President's thinking, also said Nixon has no intention of expanding on his most recent statements about the scandal staining his administration.

"He's already answered the questions," one White House official declared as he pounded his fist on texts of the President's Wednesday night's speech and statement and his previous May 22 and April 30 Watergate responses.

The President's latest written statement was 2,800 words, considerably shorter than his television speech. Nixon conceded that it "does not answer many of the contentions raised during the Watergate hearings."

"The facts are complicated, and the evidence conflicting," he told the nation. "It would not be right for me to try to sort out the evidence, to rebut specific witnesses, or pronounce my own judgments about their credibility."

The White House sources gave another reason why the President decided not to give a detailed, point by point rebuttal and analysis.

If he had, they said, the Senate Committee would have begun an extensive examination of Nixon's account, digesting it in the televised hearings Nixon would like shut off.

"They would have gone on and on and on, they would keep moving over the same ground forever," one official said. "It would have served no useful purpose."

As a result Nixon issued the slimmed-down statement, using only a fraction of the novel-length analysis and rebuttal drafted by his White House lawyers.

When the President holds a promised news conference within the next two weeks, he is certain to face a barrage of Watergate questions.

But his aides say they don't expect him to expand on his past statements, even though the presidential assistants express annoyance at suggestions that key Watergate questions remain unanswered.

Nixon has denied any advance knowledge of the bugging and any role in the subsequent cover-up, has accepted responsibility for misdeeds of subordinates, has promised to be more vigilant, and has urged Americans to "get on with the urgent business of our nation."

The White House aide, thumping again on copies of the presidential denials of involvement, said "there are just so many times you can say it."

Lawyers Slate Arguments

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon's lawyers prepared today to file their final written argument before next week's courtroom debate on the White House Watergate tapes.

U.S. District Court Judge John J. Sirica gave the President's lawyers until today to respond to Watergate special prosecutor Archibald Cox's contention that Nixon has "an enforceable legal duty" to give the tape recordings to the Watergate grand jury.

In an earlier legal brief, White House lawyers argued that the courts lack the power to compel a president to do anything. The Nixon brief said that if Cox succeeded in forcing the President to obey the prosecutor's subpoena "the damage to the institution of the presidency will be severe and irreparable."

In his speech to the nation Wednesday, Nixon reiterated his determination to withhold the tapes of his conversations. Their existence was disclosed last month at the Senate Watergate hearings. Nixon said the "principle of confidentiality of presidential conversations is at stake in the question of the tapes. I must and shall oppose any efforts to destroy this principle which is so vital to the conduct of the presidency."

Nixon said disclosure of the tapes "would cripple all future presidents by inhibiting conversations between them and those they look to for advice."

In his 68-page brief, Cox rejected that argument, saying, "There will be few occasions upon which a grand jury will have similar cause to believe there may be material evidence of the criminality of high officials in the papers and documents in the executive office of the president.

"The aides of future presidents are not likely to be timid because of this remote danger of disclosure."

Cox also argued it would be up to the courts to decide if there is justification for withholding material that Nixon claims must be kept confidential.

"Even the highest executive officials are subject to the rule of law," Cox wrote.

Sirica has not indicated how soon after next week's oral argument he will issue a ruling. Appeals are expected eventually to put the question before the Supreme Court.

Agnew Investigation Secrecy-Shrouded

BALTIMORE (AP) — The grand jury investigation of Vice President Spiro T. Agnew remained shrouded in secrecy and uncertainty today, following high level meetings between federal probers and the head of the Justice Department's criminal division.

"I know where we are; I don't know where we're going," said U.S. Atty. George Beall, amid reports the Agnew phase may be temporarily stalled by legal complications.

However, persons close to the investigation indicated some indictments may be returned shortly in the probe that began last December as an investigation of Baltimore County officials and engineering firms.

Agnew, who was notified two weeks ago he was under investigation for possible violations of bribery, extortion, conspiracy and tax laws, has labeled as "damned lies" the allegations he had accepted kickbacks.

Asst. Atty. Gen. Henry E. Petersen came here from Washington Thursday, his second unannounced visit with Beall. He sat in on an interview with a Maryland businessman who reportedly implicated Agnew in an alleged bribery and kickback scheme.

Both Petersen and Beall declined comment on the investigation into alleged kickbacks and political corruption in Maryland in the last decade—before, during and after Agnew was governor.

A source close to the investigation said "there is nothing mysterious about Petersen's interest. He came here to be briefed on the status of the probe."

Petersen and Beall are said to have discussed ways to inspect Agnew's personal financial records, which the vice president has offered voluntarily, without jeopardizing any later effort to bring him before the special grand jury.

Another report indicated their talks centered on possible constitutional problems that might arise concerning the possible prosecution of a vice president in office, which never has occurred in the nation's history.

The 23-member grand jury met for two hours Thursday morning, then was dismissed until next week. The only witness was a tax agent who has been working on the case.

In another development, Clement F. Haynsworth Jr., chief judge of the 4th circuit Court of Appeals, said in Columbia, S.C., he would assign an out-of-state judge to handle the Agnew phase of the investigation as soon as he receives a formal request from Chief Judge Edward S. Northrop of the U.S. District Court in Maryland.

All nine Maryland federal district judges here have withdrawn from participation on grounds they have had business, political or personal ties with Agnew.

Retail Price Of Gasoline Still Frozen

WASHINGTON (AP) — Retail gasoline prices will remain frozen at present levels until Sept. 1, the result of a second extension of the administration's price freeze on gasoline, the director of the Cost of Living Council has announced.

Except for retailers of gasoline and diesel fuel, the price freeze will be lifted from the petroleum industry at midnight Sunday, John T. Dunlop said Thursday.

The freeze on the petroleum industry was scheduled to go last week but was extended because oil regulations under the administration's Phase 4 anti-inflation program were not ready. The freeze was lifted from the rest of the economy Monday.

Dunlop said the oil regulations would be released today, but that gasoline and diesel fuel retailers will need additional time to compute new price ceilings under them.

He said previously that the new ceilings will provide for rollbacks in some cases, and increases in others.

The council said that retailers will be required to post special government-supplied stickers on all of the nation's estimated one million-plus gasoline pumps, by Sept. 1 showing the ceiling prices and octane ratings of gasoline.

Ceiling prices also must be posted on diesel fuel pumps, the council said.

Drafters of the oil regulations are said to have been racing the clock to have the regulations ready this week.

The rest of the petroleum industry — from oil refiners to distributors — will have only little more than the weekend to prepare to put the new regulations into effect.

Deputy council director James W. McLane said Thursday the new regulations are designed to permit increased petroleum prices "to only that degree which would stimulate development of new energy reserves and permit the purchase of higher cost foreign oil."

Stickers for gasoline and diesel fuel retailers will be available from local post offices, along with the instructions, beginning Aug. 27, the council said.

Farm Union Picket Slain In California

DELANO, Calif. (AP) — Cesar Chavez says he will urge his striking United Farm Workers Union to call off their pickets in the wake of the first fatality in the long-simmering dispute with grape growers and the rival Teamsters union.

"There has been a siege of terror. The police, the growers and the Teamsters have joined hands in brutal repression of our strike," Chavez said after Thursday's shooting death of a veteran UFW picket.

Chavez said he would urge the union's executive board to call off picketing until government protection can be provided because "we don't want any more people hurt."

"The workers were very upset," the union leader said. "We met with them and told them to remain cool, that the approach of nonviolence is the only way to do it."

Juan De La Cruz, 60, was shot in the chest by someone firing from a passing pickup truck as pickets dispersed in Arvin, 50 miles south of here.

Witnesses at the Giumarra Vineyards copied the vehicle's license number, and police later arrested Ernest Badig, 64, of Fresno, and Bayani Advincula, 20, of Delano and booked them for investigation of murder. The two were farm workers at Dalton Richardson Farms.

It was the first picket line death since the farm workers struck July 29 over refusal of grape growers to renew UFW contracts. Three UFW members have been injured in other bursts of gunfire, and there have been numerous violent clashes on the picket lines.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Defense James R. Schlesinger said today the Russians have successfully tested missiles with multiple warheads that can be aimed at separate targets.

He told a news conference that this development shows the Russians have narrowed a technological gap which favored the United States and means that prospects for U.S.-Soviet agreement to control multiple warheads has "deteriorated sadly."

"In recent weeks, the Soviets have successfully demonstrated in inflight tests the MIRV capability...for at least two of their missiles," Schlesinger said.

He said there is less certain evidence that the MIRV capability has been achieved with two other land-based intercontinental ballistic missiles.

Women's Roles Changing In Japan

TOKYO (AP)—American novelist Pearl Buck, in one of her books, once asked her Japanese secretary whether she put up with the Japanese men's habit of visiting bars after work.

The secretary replied yes. She said she even waited up for her husband coming home in the wee hours in the morning—without nagging him.

She then told Pearl Buck that she complained at first, but no longer because "he did not come home at all."

Those good old days for men are quickly fading away.

Today, few Japanese women believe in the "three canons of womanhood": Obey your father while still at home unmarried, obey your husband in marriage and obey your son after being widowed.

Most married Japanese women still refer to their husbands as "Shujin" (master), and men to their wives as "Kanai" (one-in-the-house). Young girls attend bridal schools to take lessons in flower-arranging, tea ceremonies, dressmaking or homemaking or, usually, a combination of some of them, so that they can perform wifely duties well. And female employees are often expected to serve tea to their male colleagues or supervisors.

A far cry from the turn of the century, however, people no longer frown upon the men washing clothes, preparing dinner or carrying babies. Opportunities for higher education are shared by men and women alike, although only one out of every four college students is a coed.

Although housewives account for fully 26 per cent of all female Japanese, many others have come out of their kitchen confines to engage in activities traditionally in the domain of men.

There are 10,420 women in administrative jobs, more than 528,000 female technologists, 58,000 professionals, 36,000 factory owners, 79,000 company executives and 429,000 shop operators. The Japan Women's Medical Association claims membership of 4,500 and estimates there may be as many nonmember female doctors in the country. There are 257 women lawyers and 657 women professors.

Trees and shrubs defoliated by leaf-eating caterpillars two or three years in succession may die or be seriously weakened and subject to secondary attack by disease.

Women also have gained prominence in the field of crime. Police say women were responsible for 48,000 of the nation's 362,000 crimes in 1971. There are frequent reports of women killing their babies or abandoning them. Two years ago, a 27-year-old woman led a bizarre kangaroo court which sentenced 12 members of the ultra-radical United Red Army to death and executed them in a mountain hideout.

The number of divorces has almost doubled in the past 10 years to an estimated 110,000 last year, the increase being largely attributed to rising women's power at home and in society.

One of the most visible of the changes is Japan's policewomen.

The Japanese government hired 63 policewomen for the first time in 1946. The number has now increased to 1,500 across the country.

The metropolitan police have assigned 800 of their 1,100 policewomen to traffic control and the rest to guiding juvenile delinquents, guarding prisoners or patrolling for female pickpockets. They have even posted 15 women at police boxes on Tokyo's busy street corners.

Surprisingly in a supposedly male-dominated country, many policewomen deny they have ever encountered any difficulty in dealing with male criminals or traffic violators.

"I think we have gained a reputation of being tougher than our male colleagues," Fumiko Niki, one of the two female officers at the metropolitan police, said recently. "Some drivers are scared of us."

Miss Mitsuko Ikeda, a chubby, mini-skirted 20-year-old policewoman, agrees.

"I have been giving tickets, booking traffic violators and criminals and controlling traffic," she said. "But even a drunken man didn't tease me."

Some drivers commented that policewomen are usually inflexible "and can get quite sticky if you try to get away with your violation."

It was Pearl Buck's observation that Japanese women have ceased to be subdued, withdrawn or silent—as were the women she knew before the war. The late Nobel laureate may have underestimated the changes.

1040 U.S. Individual Income Tax Return Taxpayers Ask IRS

This column of questions and answers on federal tax matters is provided by the local office of the U.S. Internal Revenue Service and is published as a public service to taxpayers. The column answers questions most frequently asked by taxpayers.

(Q.) My wife and I are going to purchase one U.S. Savings Bond each month for my son's college education. Would it be more advantageous on a tax standpoint if I purchased the bonds naming my son and myself as co-owners or naming him sole owner?

(A.) From a tax standpoint, naming your son sole owner of the bonds would be more advantageous, since interest on U.S. Savings Bonds bought in the name of the child is income to the child not the parent. This is so even if the parent paid for the bonds and named beneficiary. However, interest on bonds purchased by a parent naming his child as co-owner is taxable to the parent. For more information see IRS publication 576, "Tax Information on United States Savings Bonds." Contact your local Internal Revenue office for a free copy.

(Q.) Are brokerage fees deductible? (A.) Fees you pay a broker to collect your bond interest or dividends on shares of stock are deductible as miscellaneous deductions. But brokerage fees paid to acquire investment property, such as stocks or bonds are not deductible. They are added to the cost of the property.

(Q.) I work as a waitress in a restaurant. Occasionally, a group of customers will use our banquet room for a private party. Instead of tipping, customers are required to pay a service charge which is split among the waiters, waitresses and other employees. Should I report this amount as "tip" to my employer for tax purposes?

(A.) No. Your share of this service charge is not a tip, but is part of your wages paid by the employer. As such, it is taxable, but does not have to be included in your report of tips to your employer.

(Q.) My son is 20 and works full time during the day and goes to school at night. Can I still claim him as a dependent regardless of how much money he makes.

(A.) Generally, you may not claim a person as a dependent if he had gross income of $750 or more during the year. The only exceptions to this rule occur if your child is less than 19 at the end of the year or a full time student during five months of the year. In your son's case, he is over 19 and is not considered a full time student because he is attending night school and is employed full time during the day.

Moscow's Economic Woes

There has been little if any news of the probable size of this year's Russian grain crop. Moscow seems to have placed a secrecy stamp on such speculation.

Moscow does not publish statistics comparable to the U.S. gross national product or various industrial manufacturing indexes, and for good reason.

Comparison of economic statistics between the USSR and almost any major country of the West would show the Soviet Union in a poor light. Communist chieftains prefer that no such comparisons be made.

Thus it becomes a tedious job for free world economists to fathom the extent of Soviet failures, but an expert system of guesswork has been built up from some bizarre, but fundamentally reliable, sources.

From these, it is estimated that the Soviet economic growth rate this year will be limited to 3 per cent. In 1970, the year Khrushchev was fond of boasting his country would overtake the United States, the average Soviet consumer enjoyed only about 30 per cent of the material possessions of the average American.

No wonder the Brezhnev-Kosygin is frantically searching for ideas to copy from the West.

When Clark Clifford, in his infamously famous op. ed. piece in the New York Times, called for the double resignation of President Nixon and Vice President Agnew in order to hand the White House back to the liberals despite the 1972 election mandate, he faced a seemingly immovable stumbling block. Spiro Agnew had not been touched by Watergate. So who or what could make him resign?

Now, however, by a fearful symmetry, mud has been splattered on Agnew. In the press conference which the Vice President called to affirm his innocence of the charge of being involved in kickbacks when he was Governor of Maryland, the word "resign" was banded about by the reporters. If Clark Clifford had been masterminding the script, it couldn't have been more pat.

The Federal investigation of Agnew coming on top of the Senatorial inquisition into Nixon's connections with Watergate surely couldn't have been anything more than a nasty coincidence. But what the liberals will try to make of it won't be coincidence. Agnew will have to come absolutely clean, presenting all his records and disdaining any reliance on such things as Executive privilege and separation of the powers, if he is to sustain his credibility as the "Mr. Candor" of a snake bitten Administration. Even the smallest lingering suspicion of Agnew guilt will alter Clark Clifford's fantasy into a substantial debater's position.

Fortunately, Agnew began well by calling that immediate press conference. It is what Vic Gold, his former press aide, wanted him to do. It is impossible to meet Agnew face to face and not be impressed with his appearance of absolute candor and honesty. Where it could be "tricky Dicky," it has never been "tricky Spiro." But, as of the moment of writing, Agnew reserves the right to discuss the question of the release of his papers with his counsel. Even this hesitance won't do; a man's financial records aren't in the same category as Nixon's tapes, which presumably recorded all manner of indiscreet remarks that had nothing to do with Watergate or its cover-up.

The worst thing about the one-two punches that fate has thrown at the Nixon Administration is that they are keeping the country from contemplating the real crime of the century. This crime has been perpetrated by a self-righteous majority of the U.S. Senate. Until Watergate deflected his energies, Nixon had the Indochinese situation well in hand. Dr. Henry Kissinger had shrewdly utilized the Soviet-Red Chinese split to get 500,000 American soldiers out of Vietnam without delivering Saigon to either of the two big Communist powers. The P.O.W.'s had been brought back from captivity. Hanoi's recuperative ability had been drastically set back by the bombing. And Nixon still retained his power of maneuver, his ability to put force behind his peacemaking diplomacy, by virtue of his right, as Commander-in-Chief in a war that had not yet been concluded, to order out the B-52s to support local troops who were fighting the anti-Communist battle.

Snake Bitten

The Senate, manifesting a stupidity that has hardly been seen since British Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain went to Munich, has used the confusion provoked by Watergate to take all sense of logic out of U.S. foreign policy. Even the low-keyed "Nixon Doctrine" needs some ultimate sanction. This sanction was provided by the B-52s, which have been our only answer to the Soviet and Maoist use of guerrillas. But the Senate, led by Majority Leader Mike Mansfield, finally forced Nixon to agree to the August 15 cut-off of bombing in Cambodia. The way will soon be cleared for a Red Victory in Cambodia, and the Nixon Administration, denied the use of its air power and its mine ships, will have no way of compelling the North Vietnamese to live up to the peace treaty of January 28, 1973.

Whether this portends the loss of Southeast Asia to the Communists is a question that will depend on the resilience of Thailand, the military abilities and the confidence of the Sagon government, and the "neutralist" williness of Cambodia's Prince Norodom Sihanouk should Peking insist on his restoration in Phnom Penh. But if the free countries of Southeast Asia do manage to survive what Senator Mansfield and his gravediggers have tried to decree for them, it will be due to their own initiatives.

Mansfield is supposed to be a student of history, but he seems unaware that some 90 per cent of Japan's oil supply moves through the Indian Ocean around the Indochinese and Singapore bend. The punchless policy that the Senate has foisted on Nixon must lead straight to a nuclear buildup in Japan and the revival of the Japanese navy. That may not be what Mansfield wants, but it is probably what he is going to get.

Letters To The Editor

Dear Editor:

I would like to bring this to the attention of the parents of young children. I thank the Herald for allowing me to do so.

Recently we took our young daughter to see two Walt Disney films at the Starlight Theater. Both of these films are rated for General Audiences.

We were very surprised and annoyed when the coming previews were shown for "Live and Let Die" and "SSSSSSS". These films are both rated Parental Guidance. In our opinion, the previews could not have possibly been rated for a general audience made up mostly of very young children. We were under the impression that G-rated previews had to be shown when there was a G-rated movie playing. If I am wrong, please advise me so.

As parents, we were not given the opportunity of exercising our judgement as to whether or not our child should watch this type of preview. Had we had that opportunity, we would not have allowed her to view it.

We feel that it is the responsibility of the owners and managers to see to it that this situation does not happen again. We also feel that an apology is in order to all the parents who were there.

Sincerely,
JAMES AND

Dear Editor:

While shopping recently at a local supermarket I had a rude awakening. Since there was a newspaper coupon for one dollar off on any canned ham three pounds or over I selected a three pound ham of a leading brand, price $5.71 — $1.00, my price $4.71.

Later in the day while shopping at another local super market I noticed the same brand of ham for five pounds for $5.89. The five pound ham of this brand at the other supermarket was $8.59 — $1.00, my price would have been $7.59. I would have shopped much more economically by buying the five pound ham at the second supermarket where it was $5.89 with no special advertising.

I feel this was misleading merchandising and I hope sharing my experience will lead to more concern for consumer protection.

Sincerely,
MRS. T. A. DOWNING

CAPETOWN, S. Africa (AP) — An 18-year-old girl rode an Arabian horse more than 1,000 miles from Pretoria to Cape Town, to raise money for underprivileged children and to demonstrate the worth of the breed.

The girl said she found her mount very adaptable and fantastic in traffic.

Today In History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Friday, Aug. 17, the 229th day of 1973. There are 136 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

In 1648, Oliver Cromwell defeated Royalists under the Duke of Hamilton at the battle of Preston, England.

In 1786, the hero of the Alamo, Davey Crockett, was born in Tennessee.

In 1863, federal batteries and ships bombarded Fort Sumter in Charleston harbor during the civil war.

In 1940, Germany announced a total blockade of Britain during World War II.

In 1943, Allied forces gained complete control in Sicily.

In 1945, France's provisional President Charles De Gaulle commuted the death sentence of collaborator Henri Petain to life imprisonment.

Ten years ago: A ferry boat sank in the East China Sea off Okinawa, leaving 128 persons dead or missing.

Five years ago: Georgia Gov. Lester Maddox announced that he was a candidate for the Democratic nomination for President.

One year ago: General Motors yielded to White House pressure and trimmed a proposed $90 price increase on 1973-model cars to $59.

Today's birthdays: Entertainer Mae West is 80. Financier John Hay Whitney is 69. Franklin D. Roosevelt Jr. is 59.

One of the largest crowds in recent Fair history attended fair activities at the Fairgrounds. The grand stand area was "jammed" for the auto thrill show and a huge crowd was on hand at the same time for the 4-H Revue in the Grange building. The fair was forecasted as one of the biggest and best ever.

A trim, well-fed and well cared for Hereford steer was picked as grand champion of the 4-H fat cattle show by Edwin Zorn, judge of the beef show. Zorn, Warren County 4-H agent, placed Sonya Lindsey's steer at the top of the record field of 115 entries.

Somewhere on the fairgrounds was a cow that was a real ribbon taker. Bruce Reid, Jackson Twp. 4-H Club member reported that he won second and third ribbons on his cattle project. He hung the ribbons on a wire stretched across the cattle pens. A neighboring cow eyed them, stretched for them, wrapped them around her tongue and devoured them. Which cow was the real ribbon winner?

NEW YORK (AP) — The day of the guitar is finally arriving, according to vice president Robert P. Bull, of Fender Musical Instruments, which produces electric guitars and amplifiers.

Although the guitar has been America's most popular instrument for several years, more people are buying it, playing it and listening to it than ever before, Bull says.

He believes the upsurge indicates the tremendous increase in participation in music, most of it by young people, and with most emphasis on the guitar. He points out that the guitar is light, convenient, portable, highly versatile and can be amplified through a volume range of whispering to thundering.

Speaking Of Your Health

by Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

My husband gets angina pains that shoot down his arm. Aside from this, he has recovered completely from a heart attack.

Why should these pains continue? Mrs. E.S.A., Ohio

Dear Mrs. A.:

It has always been my feeling that when patients have a real understanding of the cause for their symptoms, they are less likely to worry, and more likely to follow complete instructions.

The fact that your husband had a heart attack means that there was some narrowing of the coronary arteries which bring blood and oxygen to the heart muscle.

breathe more rapidly and thus, taking some of the essential blood away from the heart, sends it to the lungs.

Similarly, after a particularly heavy meal, blood is sent to the stomach and thus is taken away from the normal needs of the heart muscle.

In order to prevent the frequency of these anginal pains it is, therefore, important that your husband learn that unusual physical or emotional stress must be avoided.

Continued supervision by his doctor will determine his heart reserve and his capacity to slowly increase his activities.

The persistence of anginal pain, even after recovery, simply means that at certain times not enough blood and oxygen flow to the heart in order to satisfy its requirements.

The word "angina" is derived from the Latin, meaning "to choke." An anginal pain is a choking, oppressive feeling associated with radiating pain that shoots from the heart to the shoulder, and sometimes down the arm. Angina, therefore, becomes the body's expression of the need for more blood; or, it begs for some added rest.

For this reason, patients with angina are urged to avoid excessive fatigue and emotional stress and tension.

Even a family argument may produce enough emotional pressure to induce anginal spasm.

People with coronary artery disease have observed that when they walk rapidly against a chilling breeze, a pain in the arm may follow. The reason is that this exertion makes the patient

NEW YORK (AP) — Jumping to conclusions:

The dearest art in America is the art of listening. You can hardly hire anybody, even a psychiatrist, to listen to anymore. Everybody wants to be heard; when everyone talks at once, who is left to listen? What we need is a National Clam-Up Day during which everyone, from child to centenarian, would shut up and enjoy himself — and perhaps listen to the echoes of some of the wise things said but unheard yesterday.

About the worst thing you can tell a woman is that she snores. No woman will admit she does. But it is a feminine delusion that only men snore. The medical fact is that men and women snore about equally, that is, in actual numbers. But in quality of performance, the snoring of women is far inferior to that of men. No woman could ever match the depth of wheezy raspings, bottomless gurgles, stentorian sighs, cacophonous snorts, and snorous roars of a fat, middle-aged man sleeping off a huge dinner of pig knuckles, sauerkraut and beer.

The biggest problem in the average business office is what to do with a homely girl who can't spell either — but who is too nice to fire.

About the most useless thing on earth is a picturesque post card from someone you dislike who could afford to go to a better vacation resort than you went to.

No matter how much smarter you are than the other fellow, you are always willing to listen to his advice on two subjects — how to cure the hiccups and how to get rid of a cold.

Most men go to their graves secretly convinced, no matter how many other goodies life showered on them, that somehow or other they never managed to get their fair share of sex. And they wonder who did get it.

God never made a canyon, man never dug a well, as deep and empty as the drained faces of tired people you see any day in a New York City

I have never had a venereal disease. Recently I developed a hydrocele. A friend worried me by telling me that this is a symptom of syphilis.

Could my doctor be keeping something from me? Mrs. B.L., Neb

Dear Mr. L.:

You can be certain that if there was any indication of venereal disease your doctor would have told you.

I am afraid your friend did not do you any favor by suggesting such a thing. There is nothing more confusing than ignorance that masquerades as kindness.

A hydrocele is an excessive accumulation of fluid within the scrotum. Slight malformations of the testicles and their surrounding tissues can account for a hydrocele.

In most instances, this problem is treated by the simple removal of the fluid. When the fluid tends to recur frequently, a simple surgical procedure can successfully remedy it.

Singer Joan Baez

Wins Divorce

REDWOOD CITY, Calif. (AP) — Folk singer Joan Baez and her husband David Harris have gotten a divorce after five years of marriage. They had been separated for some time.

Miss Baez, 32, and Harris, 28, were married shortly before he was sent to prison in 1968 for draft evasion. He spent 20 months in prison.

Custody of their three-year-old son Gabriel was awarded to the couple jointly by the San Mateo County Superior Court. No alimony or child support was involved.

Cuba Has Long Way To Go After 20 Years Of Castro

EDITOR'S NOTE — Fidel Castro recently celebrated the 20th anniversary of his Cuban revolution. Among those attending was Harold Morrison, foreign editor of the Canadian Press, who spent 10 days observing the Cuban scene. Here is a report.

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Foreign Editor
HAVANA — Cuba, the Communist base in the Caribbean, is beginning to show economic improvement but it has miles and miles to go.

Even Fidel Castro admits this as he tells his people: "The next few years will be years of hard work, sacrifice and struggle."

For the average Canadian traveler, Cuba may appear as a picturesque, enchanting island, trimmed with sandy beaches and swaying palms. Special hotels for tourists can isolate the traveler from the heat, the skimpy Cuban rations of meat, butter and other products and the continuous watch by security men.

Even the Sierra Maestra, the mountains which protected and gave birth to the 1953 Castro revolution, evoke romantic thoughts as evening skies turn red and blue beyond the setting sun.

But travel on those same roads by day and sweep your eye beyond the fields of sugar cane and the bamboo hovels come into sight — hovels and shacks where workers live, waiting for the better life communism has promised.

For many who starved under the old, pre-Castro regimes, the better life has already arrived. At least they have work and an equal share in rationed food and clothing.

No man between the ages of 18 and 65 is without a job. Indeed, he will go to jail if he refuses to work. A minimum wage of 85 pesos a month — about $100 — is enforced. Many workers earn between 200 and 300 pesos a month.

Rent is controlled with the state charging no more than 10 per cent of wages for accommodation. And some Cubans live well, sharing old mansions taken from the rich or in huge new prefabricated apartment complexes springing up in the suburbs of Havana and Santiago de Cuba in the eastern Oriente Province.

A private car is out of the question. Those cars that still rattle across city streets are mainly old wrecks.

But the state has cars of its own, along with fleets of buses, and many officials can get cars if their jobs call for vehicles. For the majority transport means the bus.

Officials insist there have been dramatic changes in living conditions. Expanded school construction has virtually eliminated illiteracy. Medical training has increased and those who are sick get proper care.

But compare Cuba with some of its neighbors and the struggle comes into sharper focus. Cuba still is basically a land of sugar cane, tobacco, nickel and rum.

Much of its material it needs is imported. Because of its heavy dependence on Soviet aid, Cuba does most of its shopping in Soviet stores. Planes, trucks, guns, rockets, radios, watches, tanks, ships, radar and other equipment come from Russia.

Diplomatic officials here estimate that Soviet aid must run to more than $1 million a day.

"Who knows," says Castro, "what tremendous suffering our people would have had to endure as the price for our revolution if we hadn't received such huge foreign aid."

But Castro undoubtedly realizes that even the Soviet Union — no matter what its political target in Latin America and the Caribbean — cannot play the role of rich uncle forever.

So the Cuban leader has set a heavy economic task for his people: an increase in national economic production of no less than six per cent

Man Freed In Slaying

CHICAGO (AP) — For three years Wilbur McDonald waited in prison, pleading his innocence in a 1970 killing and praying that the real killer would be caught.

His prayers may have been answered Wednesday as he walked out of the Criminal Courts building free on a $20,000 personal recognizance bond.

McDonald is scheduled to appear in court again on Sept. 25, and the Chicago Sun-Times said today it has learned that State's Atty. Bernard Carez will recommend McDonald's outright release.

He was freed just 32 hours after Lester Harrison, an exconvict with a long record, reportedly confessed to the 1970 slaying of Agnes B. Lehmann, which sent McDonald to prison.

Harrison, 51, was arrested Monday in Grant Park moments after the stabbing death of Elaine Ott of Seattle in a restroom. Newspaper accounts citing unnamed police officials said Harrison has confessed to the Ott and Lehmann killings and to killing two other women in the park in the last year.

Oceanography Ship Drills For History

LA JOLLA, Calif. (AP) — A hardy ship, the Glomar Challenger has traveled the equivalent of 20 times around the world testing the theories of ages.

Cores of sediment drilled up from the ocean floor by the Challenger are said to confirm theories of continental drift and sea floor spreading.

The National Science Foundation has spent $42.5 million on Challenger and earmarked another $26 million until 1976 for its geological experiments. Known as The Deep Sea Drilling Project, the project, largest of its kind, reached its fifth birthday Aug. 11.

Dr. Melvin N. A. Peterson is principal investigator and manager of the project run by the University of California's Scripps Institution of Oceanography.

He says the project has been "fantastically successful," justified alone by confirmation of the theory of continental drift and sea floor spreading.

"The concept has changed our entire view of earth," said Peterson. "It has provided a unifying hypothesis — more than a hypothesis — that brings together in a rational picture a great many scattered observations made over the last 100 years."

The figures show the North Atlantic is separating at a rate of 1.2 centimeters a year, the South Atlantic at 2 centimeters a year and the Pacific at rates up to 12 centimeters a year.

a year over the next 10 years.

That's a big target for a country so poor in resources and yet forced by its ideological and political policies to maintain a huge army. Some neighboring countries are known to be uneasy about the Cuban arsenal.

"Why so big?" a Caribbean visitor grumbled during a military display that showed a finely tuned graduate corps of men and women officers, goose-stepping in review before their leader. They were followed by the latest military hardware, including new amphibious tanks, rockets and long-range field artillery. Squadrons of Soviet-made jets flew overhead.

Many diplomatic observers reject suggestions that perhaps Castro is preparing military pressures to expand communism in the Caribbean. They feel he has too many problems at home to gamble on a military struggle that might arouse the U.S. giant nearby.

The more convincing prospect, some observers suggest, is that Castro will continue to promote a propaganda battle and encourage guerrilla warfare by those who advocate communism.

But his main goal at home will be to attempt to fulfill promises of a better life for his people.

Perhaps Castro's most ambitious project is to attempt to triple nickel production to about 90,000 tons a year from the current 36,000.

A move that undoubtedly would help Cuban nickel would be removal of the U.S. trade embargo. Castro keeps referring to the U.S. policy as "a criminal blockade."

But while he still casts the U.S. in the role of the main "imperialist" enemy, there are indications, in discussing the issue with Cuban officials, that the Cuban government would be highly elated if President Nixon decided to remove the embargo.

MR. AND MRS. LARRY JAMES WRIGHT

Miss Deborah Lynn Morrison Weds Larry James Wright

The Rev. Roy Heimbach officiated the double ring ceremony uniting in marriage Miss Deborah Lynn Morrison and Mr. Larry James Wright 7 p.m. Aug. 5th before the altar of Jefferson Church of Christ in Christian Union.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Morrison, 1785 Sioux Drive, Logan Elm Village, Circleville and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James Wright, Route 5, Coshocton.

The church was decorated with two antique silver candelabra, palms and three arrangements of white asters and baby's breath, yellow daisies, mint green carnations and pompons, and white ribbon on the pews. A program of nuptial selections preceding the ceremony was played by Miss Marilyn Dean, organist of Columbus and violinist, Miss Gwen Smith.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She selected for her wedding a floor length gown of white chiffon and chantilly lace over summer satin. The short sleeves on the lace bodice were covered with full chiffon sleeves cuffed at the wrists.

The bride's picture hat, decorated with flowers, held a midi length chiffon veil falling over her shoulders creating a Victorian look. She carried a Victorian bouquet with colorful asters, pompons, baby's breath, Sweetheart roses and daisies. Her only jewelry was a white metal brooch imbedded with amethysts.

Miss Beezie Anderson was maid of honor in a chiffon formal length gown with a floral skirt of dark blue, green, lavender and yellow topped with a solid mint green bodice with matching accessories.

Miss Terry Carmen and Miss Diane Skaggs were bridesmaids. Their gowns were identical to that of the honor attendant with yellow lining and accessories using the same lines as the bridal gown. They carried colonial bouquets of roses and daisies.

Little Miss Darl Boggs of Gallipolis was flower girl dressed as the honor attendant. Master Doug Wright of Coshocton was ring bearer. Miss Boggs carried a small white basket filled with white flower petals.

Mr. Ric Moyer of Coshocton served as best man and Mr. Steve Morrison and Mr. Kim Wright were ushers. Groomsmen were Mr. Danny Gordon of Circleville and Mr. Denver Dordill of Westerville.

The bride's mother greeted guests in a maxi length lavender knit gown with long chiffon sleeves and wore a corsage of white Sweetheart roses and baby's breath.

The bridegroom's mother was attired in a maxi length pink gown with matching accessories and a corsage of white pompons, baby's breath and pink Sweetheart roses.

A reception at the cafeteria of Circleville Bible College immediately followed the ceremony. The tables were covered with crisp white linen tablecloths and held two crystal goblets with floating yellow and green carnations. Hostesses were Mrs. Ruth Ann Tener of Circleville assisted by Mrs. Amy Wright of Route 5, Coshocton and Mrs. Joy Moyer of Conesville.

For a wedding trip to an undisclosed destination, the bride wore a jersey knit dress of green, orange, white and brown floral print with white accessories. The couple now resides at Route 2, Fresno, Ohio.

The bride is a 1972 graduate of Unioto High School, attended Capital University and Circleville Bible College.

The bridegroom is a 1971 graduate of Riverview High School and is a two year student of Circleville Bible College. He is currently employed by Baker's Pontiac in Coshocton.

Out-of-town guests at the wedding were from Coshocton, Newark, Akron, Gallipolis, Chillicothe, Ohio and Point Pleasant, W. Va.

Nettle Creek Industries Toured By Senior Citizens

Nettle Creek Industries at Richmond, Ind. was the destination for the tour made by Pickaway Senior Center members on Tuesday. The bus left the Center at 8 a.m. At Richmond they toured the factory which makes fancy embroidered bedspreads, pillowtops, draperies etc. The intricate stitchery is all done by machine, closely watched by expert workman who can tell when even one thread becomes broken. A nearby salesroom also attracted much attention.

The group ate lunch at the Holly Hills Smorgasboard near Richmond. En route home they visited the Air Museum at Fairborn.

The day of the trip marked the birthday of Mrs. Fanny Brooks, tour chairman, and the following day was Louise Heine's birthday, so the entire group sang "Happy Birthday" to each of them. Mrs. Brooks was also presented with a surprise birthday gift, with which she was instructed to purchase a folding umbrella, similar to one she had admired on the trip.

Umbrellas were a necessity at one time during the trip, but most of the time it rained while driving, but when time came to leave the bus for some sightseeing, the rain stopped and the sun shone.

Those who made the trip were: Bessie Radcliffe, Helen Valentine, Hazel Harvey, Eva Heffelfinger, Muriel Ott, Magdalene Fee, Helen Newton, Mary Barr, Louise Heine, Almeda Hill, Blanche Justus, Mary Clark, Adella Huffman.

Oldest Drug Abuse

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — About 4.5 million Americans currently employed in business, industry and government have problems with alcohol, Arthur D. Little, Inc., reports. The resulting cost in absenteeism, sick pay, high accident rates, low productivity and poor executive decisions is an estimated $8 billion annually, or $32 million each working day.

The research company adds that alcoholism is the oldest and still the most prevalent form of drug abuse among U.S. workers.

Yoga Society Works For Ultimate Reality

NEW YORK (AP)—As you relax motionlessly in a head-on-knees bend, your hands clasping your feet, repeating the words, "Baba Nam Kevalam," you're supposed to become more closely attuned to Ultimate Reality. "It expands the mind from a cruder level to higher spiritual levels," an India-trained monk explains softly. "It's beautiful. You become well established. It makes you a true person morally, spiritually and physically.

"It makes you know who you are, to realize the name of self mirrors God. It enables you to do something better for yourself and the world you belong to. It puts you in union with cosmic consciousness."

This is the promise of Ananda Marga (Path of Bliss) Yoga Society, as described by one of its six authorized acaryas (teachers) in this country, Acarya Yatiishvarananda.

Obviously, he points out, explaining it is not nearly as informative as experiencing it, just as "telling about eating an apple is far different from eating an apple."

The Ananda Marga group, with headquarters in Wichita, Kan., now operates 112 centers in cities in every state. It is one of a score of Eastern religious movements stemming from Hinduism and Buddhism now flourishing in the United States.

Estimates have put the number of active American followers of various Eastern groups at 750,000, with casual dabblers in them running into the millions.

Probably the largest is Nichiren Shoshu, the U.S. branch of Japan's Buddhist-derived, aggressively evangelistic Soka Gakkai, which claims more than 200,000 adherents in this country, with headquarters in Santa Monica, Calif.

Some of them are tightly defined religious groups, while others, such as Ananda Marga, have a typical Oriental acceptance of various religions, including Judeo-Christianity, offering their methods as a helpful supplement.

"We're not tied to any particular caste or creed, but are for all of them," Acarya Yatiishvarananda said in an interview. "We want to enhance all faith with a common spiritual technique and a universal feeling for life."

A bearded monk of 31, in saffron turban, tunic and loose-fitting dhoti, he says many Protestants, Catholics and Jews use the group's meditation and exercise techniques to the benefit of their own faiths.

"It is everywhere needed because this society is going down very fast," he said. "People are so caught up in material, physical living that they're unable to breathe peace and harmony."

"They don't think of their own development and that of society, but only of money, money, money. This is not the 'summum bonum.' It makes only tensions, breaking down health, minds and hearts. People want more."

Unlike many Eastern groups, which tend to shun contemporary worldly problems, Ananda Marga contends its practices sensitize participants to human needs. The society carries on many social service projects, such as day-care centers, foodcrops, programs for the aged, drug users, handicapped and prisoners.

Homecoming Planned By Five Points UM

The Five Points United Methodist Church is planning a Homecoming Aug. 26 immediately following the morning church service.

It will be a pot luck dinner with the beverage and table service furnished by the WSCS. Family and group activities are planned.

Hearing Clinic Closes Until Sept. 29

There will be no more therapy sessions at the Pickaway County speech and hearing center until Sept. 29 it has been announced by Cheri Ressler, center supervisor.

Social Security Office Taking Applications For Income Payments

The Chillicothe social security office can not take applications for supplemental security income payments, a Federal program scheduled to start in 1974 that will establish an income floor for people in financial need who are 65 or over, or blind, or disabled, according to Harry Bieber, social security district manager.

But people already getting state old age assistance, or state aid because they are blind or disabled, don't have to apply, he said. They'll be getting more information later this year about how the program will help them.

"The first monthly payments under the Federal program will be made in January 1974," Bieber said. "Until then, State and local public assistance offices will continue to make payments in the usual way." People not getting public assistance now who think they may be eligible for the new Federal payments should call or write social security to find out if they should apply. "Federal supplemental security income payments will be

Keep Those Sunglasses For Winter

In advice to winter drivers, Dr. Alden Haffner, member of the advisory board of The Society for Visual Care explains that "sunglasses lessens the glare of snow created when it scatters light." The situation encourages serious visual difficulties and eye discomfort which can lead to accidents, cautioned the doctor, who is also executive director of the Optometric Center of New York. He suggests also that sunglasses be gray rather than green because "green has a tendency to distort the red end of the spectrum."

Some non-prescription sunglass lenses can distort red colors such as tail lights and stop lights in front of you making them seem closer than they are, he says.

Wipe the automobile hood clean so glare will be eliminated. It will also eliminate the danger of snow blowing back off the hood and onto the windshield, blinding the driver. And windshield should be wiped clean. Ice and snow can be removed with de-icing fluid or by letting the motor run before starting a trip.

THE CROSSROADS

Who am I? What is life? Where am I going? Why am I here??? When will I know???

Almost everyone who's ever lived has at one time or another asked himself one or all of these questions. Or others—What shall I do? Where shall I turn? Why did this have to happen to me? Who will help? When? ? ?

Sooner or later every man seeks understanding. The seeking can be exhilarating, depending upon where one searches.

Those who turn to God and His Church find unlimited opportunities opening for them, as their concept of life is enriched and enlarged.

If you stand at the crossroads and the world seems a turmoil of conflicting ideas, turn to your church. Its truth never wavers. Its strength and purpose can make your life fuller and happier.

General Telephone Complaint Filed

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The Communication Workers of America were to file a complaint today with the Public Utilities Commission of Ohio accusing strike-bound General Telephone Co. of violating a state utility law.

A General Telephone spokesman called the charge "harassment" growing out of a strike by 2,800 CWA members since July 16. "They are just grasping at straws," said Don Detweiler.

A CWA spokesman said, "The union contends that the company illegally has two rate requests before the commission at once."

Detweiler said General Telephone did not consider the situation illegal because only one of the cases is before the commission.

State utility laws allow a company to file one permanent rate request and one emergency request at the same time, but not two permanent requests.

Detweiler said the commission approved a $4.7-million-a-year rate hike in August 1971. He said the company had sought an increase of $9 million and so filed an appeal with the Ohio Supreme Court, where the case is pending.

He said the commission has been asked to clarify certain points in its August 1971 decision. The company contended the agency erred on several points.

"When the commission answers those points, the Supreme Court will then decide on the appeal," Detweiler said.

He said the company filed the second rate request in December 1972, seeking $13.5 million. He added that a decision on that matter is pending with the commission.

"It is the understanding of the company that it is all perfectly legal," Detweiler said.

Between August 1971 and December 1972, he said the company had to pay out $4 million more in wages to workers. "The reason for the second rate request was the wage increase," Detweiler said.

Wages appear to be the current stumbling block in a month-long strike by the union against General Telephone, the state's largest independent phone company. It serves 70 of Ohio's 88 counties.

The company has offered a 7 per cent wage boost, and the union has asked for a 10 per cent hike.

Union and company negotiators met with federal mediator Howard Hughes Thursday, but came to no agreement. The two sides are to meet again next week.

SUPER DUPER MARKET

Dear Abby:

By Abigail Van Buren

Half A Night Of Love

DEAR ABBY: Let me tell you how I handled the "snoring husband" problem: For years I slept beside him and had many sleepless nights because I just didn't want separate bedrooms. I finally took a look at myself and reasoned that my husband would rather have a rested, loving wife in the morning than what I had become, so I explained that I wanted to hug him until he fell asleep, then I'd go into the guest room to sleep, and the first one awake in the morning would come to the other's room to be together.

Nothing has worked out better. I usually wake up first, take the pins out of my hair, brush my teeth, and apply a few dabs of his favorite perfume-then I plug in the coffee and quietly slip into bed with him. In a few minutes he smells the perfume and coffee and we enjoy a sweet time of being together. He seems much happier now than he has been in all our 26 years of marriage.

This works out so much better than a whole night of tossing. Each night we thank the Lord for each other, and we do it together. A couple becomes so close when they pray together. So tell the wives of snorers to do what I did, and not to forget the prayer-or the perfume.

GRATEFUL AND HAPPY

DEAR G. AND H.: Beautiful. But this arrangement is possible only after the kids have left home. Or for childless couples with guest rooms. For the less fortunate I recommend adhesive tape for his mouth and ear plugs for her ears, or a gentle jab in the ribs accompanied by: "Roll over darling, you sound like a 747."

DEAR ABBY: I read the letter from TROUBLED MIND who is worried because she will soon be entitled to Social Security, but has no birth certificate to prove her age.

There are other documents which are acceptable. For instance: School records, census records; an insurance policy which shows birth date; marriage record showing date of birth; permits, licenses, or voting record with age shown.

There are thousands of people who were not born in this country and therefore have no birth certificates. But if one of the above mentioned documents is offered as proof of age, it will be acceptable of the Social Security office.

N.Y. POST READER

DEAR READER: Thank you for providing my readers with this helpful information.

DEAR ABBY: This is a delayed answer to "A Believer in Buffalo," whose objection to your stand on "living wills" was printed in your June

5 column here. (Delayed because I was in the hospital.)

It seems to me that "believer," not you, is the one who thinks she's God. "God determines who shall die and when," she says. Why isn't she willing to let Him? Why does she insist that men use all those gadgets to thwart His will?

As for myself, my view point is halfway between the two extremes of doing nothing and doing a ridiculous amount of interference. I want to live as long as my brain is active, and will use all available help to do so. When my brain goes, I'll be dead anyhow and would prefer not to have the rest of my body kept artificially alive.

Unsalted Fish Plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — By diking off a portion of California's Salton Sea, a group of government and state scientists, engineers and civic leaders hope they will be able to keep the 450-square mile inland lake from getting so salty that fish can't survive in it.

By removing 5.5 million tons of salt a year from the 50-square-mile control area, the investigators figure they can restore the lake's chemical balance before irreparable harm is done.

The Salton Sea was formed between 1904 and 1907, when Colorado and Gila River flood waters broke through dikes and spread over the dry bed of an ancient lake. The fresh water soon absorbed salt from the ground, and more salt was added by irrigation runoff. The lake has been stocked with fish, but in a few years, scientists warn, their larvae will no longer be able to survive in the increasing salty water.

California officials are now considering what action to take.

Ashville News

MRS. JOHN SABINE, PHONE 983-2086

A meeting was held in the Shelter House at the Ashville Park on Tuesday afternoon, for the purpose of organizing a Senior Citizen Group in the Ashville-South Bloomfield area.

Mrs. Twyla Lorentz, director of the Pickaway Senior Center, Circleville, met with a group of approximately thirty men and women and explained the activities of the center. She stressed that there was really something of interest for everyone, such as sewing, arts and crafts, games, trips, etc.

A second meeting was set up for Sept. 13 at 10 a.m. for election of officers and further planning of entertainment of special interest to the group.

The Ashville-Bloomfield Chapter of Senior Citizens is sponsored by the Ashville Womens Civic Club. Mrs. Arthur Deal Jr. was in charge.

Refreshments were served at the close of the meeting.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Puckett, 120 Scioto St., will celebrate their 50th Wedding Anniversary on Aug. 23.

Mr. and Mrs. William Norris were guests of her daughter and family, Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Davy, of Groveport Sunday. They attended the Hocking Valley Steam and Gas Engine Exhibit in Glenford. The visitors witnessed the threshing of by-gone days. A flea market was also held with the exhibit.

Helen Hines would like to thank her relatives and friends for the visits, flowers and prayers during her stay in the hospital. Special thanks to Rev. Buetel for his wonderful prayers.

Mr. and Mrs. Don Rathburn and Mr. and Mrs. Bill Welsh attended the Ohio State Firemen's Conference in Akron last weekend.

Mrs. Roger Hedges was hostess on Sunday for the annual Hedges Reunion held in her country home near Ashville.

Those attending were: Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence McCabe and Cynthia, Mr. and Mrs. Wirt Whittaker, Scott, Mark and Amy, Mr. and Mrs. Roddy Cook, Tim and Susan all of Columbus;

Mr. and Mrs. Chester Hedges, Benton, Barbara and Bill, Buss Hedges, Mr. and Mrs. Jim Mathers, Jeff and Jay, Mr. and Mrs. John Sabine and Jerry all of Ashville; Mrs. Fred Call Jr. and Jeff and Mrs. Fred Call Sr. of Mt. Sterling.

The Harrison Township Emergency Squad made a run Aug. 13 to 11570 Poplar Street. Michael Morrison had taken an overdose of medicine. The child's family was advised to take him to the family doctor.

Mrs. James Irwin and Mrs. Bill Lockard, members of the Ashville Women Civic Club, a member of the Ohio Federation of Woman Clubs, would like to thank the following individuals, businesses and organizations for their overwhelming response to the Flag Project.

Flags were purchased for the streets of Ashville to fly during the Fourth of July Celebration.

Ashville Business Mens association; Andy Ward; Village Flower Shop; Irwin Insurance Agency Inc.; Toole Electric; Charlie's Meat Market; Brown Tractor and Implement Co.; Larry's Barber Shop;

Columbus Industries Inc.; Ashville Community Club; Bill Fortner; Cardinal Market, Bob Holycross; Lutz's Coffee Shop; Georgia Dore', in the name of her son Bill Dore' who is now serving in the Armed Forces;

Pythian Sisters; Ashville Fashion Mod's 4-H Club; Pritchard Insurance Agency; Ashville Kiwanis Club; Pete McQuain Pharmacy; E-Z Car and Truck Wash and Mar-Bud Apartments, Mary Cawley; Ashville Civic Club;

Ashville Grain Co.; Ashville Bank; Boyd Kuhlwein; Frank Oakes; Citizens Bank; Reynolds Metal Company; Martha M. Brinker; Ashville Garden Club; Mary and Miranda Ankrom; Emily Berry; James E. Irwin; Ronnie Gool, Modern Woodmen Insurance Co., in the name of those who lost their lives in combat in the service of their country.

Installing the flags were members of Boy Scout Troop 159. Scoutmaster of the group is Ralph Gloyd and the assistant is John Clark.

The flags will fly again through the village on Labor Day.

Many of these flags were stolen during the Fourth of July holidays, as unbelievable as it may seem. If you see someone tampering with the flags in any way while they are on display won't you please notify the law enforcement officer of the Village.

On Aug. 11, the Luther League of St. Matthews Lutheran Church of Lockbourne returned from a nine-day trip during which they attended the All Lutheran Youth Gathering, also called Discovery '73, in Houston, Texas. The members attending were Brent Trego, Mary Schwalbaugh, Harry Ammon, Martin Hafey, Charles Hafey and Nolan Hines with Pastor Don Beutel and Helen Beutel as counsellors.

The theme of Discovery '73, "With Eyes Wide Open", was taken from Romans 12. It is illustrated how 20,000 Lutheran Youth came together with their eyes wide open to witness God in many different ways. Through speakers and rap sessions everyone was able to learn more about god and to express their own feelings and beliefs.

The greatest aspect of Discovery '73 was the enormous sense of unity among the celebrants who represented all fifty states and Canada and the three sections of the Lutheran Church in North America.

After meeting so many new people and traveling through six states, all eight must admit to having a greater awareness of God, our Country, other people and ourselves.

The Luther League would like to thank all of the people who supported them in our money-making efforts which made the trip possible and God for making everything possible.

Mrs. Mae Alexander, East Main Street, Mrs. Glenn Williams and Lori of Logan Elm Village and Mrs. Don Nance, Circleville, attended a bridal shower recently in Millersburg, in honor of Debra Alexander, bride-elect of Mr. Jeffrey Baker.

The bride-elect is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Alexander, former residents of Ashville.

The wedding will be Sept. 15 at the Methodist Church in Millersburg. After their marriage the newlyweds will make their home in Columbus where Mr. Baker is a senior at Ohio State University.

Jazz Winners

In Festival

NEW YORK (AP) — Three "undiscovered" jazz groups got discovered and gave a performance during the 1973 Newport Jazz Festival in New York.

The Tea Council of the U.S.A. listened to nearly 3,000 tape-recorded entries by musicians and vocalists from every state. These were narrowed to 63 — three each from 21 regions in the United States. These tapes were submitted to impresario George Wein for final judging.

The three national winners have an average age of 21. They received expense-paid trips to New York and performance on a bill with John Mayall and Chuck Mangione.

Winners were The Lightmen Plus One, a mainstream instrumental jazz combo of seven men and one woman, from Houston; Petrus, a modern jazz trio attending the Eastman School of Music in Rochester, N.Y.; and Electric Black, an eight-piece, jazz-blues group featuring a soul vocalist, from Denver.

80 today, but she'd rather not talk about it.

"I'll wait until I'm 90," she said.

Even at the fourscore mark, she remains a remarkable figure of a woman. The well-padded frame, which inspired the Mae West life jacket in World War II, seems little changed. Her face is smooth, and her hair, still blonde though with a little bit of help, cascades to her shoulders.

When she walks, it is with the same jiggling strut that epitomized the sexually liberated woman of "She Done Him Wrong" and "I'm No Angel." An interview quite naturally led to talk of sex, since she was the pioneer of more permissive entertainment.

Huge Building Up For Sale

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — The Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co. put a spare, one-room building on the market this week—suitable for seven simultaneous indoor football games or as a boathouse for two aircraft carriers.

The building is the old Goodyear Airdock, built in 1929 for $2 million as a dirigible factory.

The 1,175-foot-long building stands 211 feet high and is 325 feet wide. It encloses 8½ acres of floor space, Goodyear said.

Goodyear said the building was the world's largest structure without interior support when it was constructed 44 years ago and that the airdock was "considered one of the engineering marvels of the century."

The company last used the building to construct a blimp in 1960, Goodyear said. Since then, the airdock has been used for storage, office space and some aviation and aerospace equipment.

Oberlin Police

Chief Shifts Jobs

HUNTINGTON, W.Va. (AP) — Lawrence R. Nowery, currently police chief of Oberlin, Ohio, has been named chief of police here, effective Sept. 17.

City Manager Barry Evans said Thursday Nowery had been picked from 76 applicants. He replaces G.H. Kleinknecht, who is now police chief in St. Louis County, Mo.

Nowery, a 30-year-old native of Parkersburg, has been chief in Oberlin since 1970. He was previously on the campus security force at Michigan State University.

Item: In 1926 Mae West starred on Broadway as a waterfront prostitute in a play she wrote called "Sex" and was jailed for "indecent performance."

Item: In 1933 she murmured "C'm up 'n' see me sometime" to Cary Grant in "She Done Him Wrong" and precipitated a wholesale revision of the film industry's censorship code.

Item: In 1937 she appeared in an "Adam and Eve" comedy skit on the Edgar Bergen-Charlie McCarthy radio show and created such a furor that she was banned from radio for 12 years.

The interviewer wonders if this soft-voiced woman of 80 could have aroused such a clamor. The answer is yes. She continues to spout such comments as: "Sex is like a small business; you gotta watch over it."

She recently finished writing a new book called "Sex Drive." She describes it as a study of "sex health and ESP."

Perhaps surprisingly, Miss West deprecates the current film trend toward sex and nudity.

"I don't approve of it, it's just not right," she declared. "I can see what's happening. The picture makers have run out of titles; that's why you get all those long titles nowadays. They've also run out of plots; everything has been done on the screen already."

"Now they have no stories, so they simply throw naked bodies at the audience. And showing the sex act! I think that's terrible."

"When I was making pictures, I couldn't even say 'hell' or 'damn' on the screen. The church people watched me like a hawk. Where are the church people today? How can they allow such things as you see on the screen?"

Miss West has mellowed about the censorship troubles she faced. She couldn't help it, she said, if she simply exuded a "sex personality." She did so with the most innocent of lines and with high-necked dresses.

"I didn't have to show myself naked," she remarked, "and I never did it. Well, once in a play, 'The Constant Sinner,' I walked across the dimly lighted stage in a thin chiffon, then changed into a dressing robe. The producer wanted me to do it, and I wasn't really nude, anyway."

The actress was married once, in her early career. It was kept secret for several years and ended in divorce.

She remains busy. She has finished a couple of screen plays, is discussing with Paramount the possibility of appearing in a sequel to "Paper Moon," and answers the fan mail of youngsters who have flipped over her movies on television.

On Books And Activities At The Library

What do you do if your boss says, "You're fired!"? Do you call an old ex-girl friend or boy friend? Immediately write a resume? Tell yourself you don't care? Buy a ticket to Tahiti? Commit suicide? Have a heart attack or a nervous breakdown? One personnel manager says you shouldn't do any of these things. You will pick up many valuable tips for handling this situation in Barbara Howell's "Don't Bother to Come In Monday: What to Do When You Lose Your Job." If you even think there is a possibility of losing your job, you might want to be prepared to handle the situation. Not many books have been written about being fired. The many anecdotes and Barbara Howell's suggestions make interesting reading.

Perhaps you would just like to change jobs. Or maybe you have never worked before. "Resumes That Get Jobs" may give you the help you need in getting that desired interview. This booklet, not only gives suggestions and model resumes, but tips for answering help wanted columns, and helpful hints for the interview. A resume, which is a summary of pertinent facts about yourself, is particularly advantageous to those seeking professional, managerial or office type jobs.

The first two volumes of Doubleday's "Encyclopedia of Discovery and Exploration" have just arrived. "The Glorious Age of Exploration" begins with the first venturesome journeys of the Egyptians. Other chapters concern the explorations of the Phoenicians, the early Greeks, the Romans, the Vikings, the Spanish and Portuguese. "The Conquest of North America" describes Pre-Columbian Mexico, the explorations of Columbus, Coronado and other Spanish Conquistadors, the French, Dutch and English explorations, and the American explorations of the continent. These volumes are beautifully illustrated with many color photographs, maps, drawings and prints.

"Hawaii," latest volume in the Time-Life American Wilderness Series contains the usual excellent information and photography associated with this series.

We do hate to bring it up, but Christmas is only four short months away. If you plan to give handmade gifts, it isn't too early to begin your project. The newly arrived "Better Homes and Gardens Christmas Ideas" and "McCall's Christmas Make it Ideas" contain suggestions for gifts to make, easy decorations, Christmas trees, and Christmas nativity figures.

There are a number of new books which will interest home owners, prospective home owners, or apartment dwellers. These are the pre-bound volumes published by House Beautiful, Better Homes and Gardens, and House and Gardens. There are volumes on home improvement, remodeling, decorating, furnishing, building plans and guides. Other new non-fiction titles include "Ohio Scenes and Citizens" by Grace Goulder; "Book of the Hopi" by Frank Waters; "Would You Believe: Living New Testament, Student Edition"; Carder's Steuben Glass: Handbook and Price Guide"; and "Modern Magic Manual" by Jean Hugard.

For suspense fans, "Undercurrent" by Bill Pronzini is new. In this novel, a young woman suspecting infidelity hires a private detective to check up on her husband. The husband turns up dead and the detective has a murder case on his hands. The setting of the story is San Francisco.

"Troublecross" by Jessica Mann is a psychological suspense novel. The story concerns a somewhat liberated woman archeology professor who becomes involved in uncovering relics and murders.

Gilligan Does Well In Assembly

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Gov. John J. Gilligan has been the big winner in the 110th General Assembly. It will be the second session in a row that he got what he wanted.

Except for a pending ethics proposal for public officials, up for action when lawmakers return Aug. 27 for a wrap-up session, Gilligan emerged a victor of the political game a lot of observers have contended he doesn't know how to play.

During the 109th General Assembly, the governor was able to get a state income tax through a Republican-dominated legislature.

In the 110th, with the GOP in control of one house, he got a $9.9 billion budget passed—a boost of 17 per cent over the previous two years.

The ease with which Gilligan has gotten money for some of his pet projects from supposedly hostile lawmakers, some of them in his own party, must have left some predecessors envious.

"Even Jim Rhodes couldn't get away with that many goodies in the basket," said one southern Ohio Democrat.

When Rhodes was governor, the GOP had lopsided majorities in both Houses.

Attorneys for former Sen. Robin T. Turner have filed a petition with the Ohio Supreme Court asking that the Senate's decision to declare his former seat vacant at the end of the year be let stand.

Earlier, Sen. Gene Slagle of Galion had asked the court to rule the Senate action out of order and let Slagle continue to serve. Slagle is a Democrat and Turner a Republican.

The Senate acted after confirming Turner's charges that names had not been rotated uniformly on the ballot in Marion County as required by law. Turner lost the election by 152 votes.

Lt. Gov. John W. Brown may have been thinking ahead when he signed a batch of bills passed by the 110th General Assembly.

When Gov. John J. Gilligan got them over to his office for signing, he noted Brown, presiding officer of the Senate, had signed one of them in the spot reserved for governor.

Brown, who once served as governor for 11 days, has indicated he may seek the Republican nomination for the job next year.

Gilligan aides rushed to prepare a new last sheet for the bill and take it around to have it signed again by legislative leaders and Brown before Gilligan finally affixed his signature to it.

Church Briefs

"Cooperation" is the sermon theme selected for Sunday morning at Trinity Lutheran Church in Circleville.

Sunday morning at the Church of the Brethren the sermon theme is "Send Out The Light."

The sermon topic at First Presbyterian Church on Sunday morning is "The Sleeper During Harvest."

"We Need A Revival" is the sermon topic for Sunday morning at First Baptist Church. The evening topic is "Studies on Prophecy" and there will be a baptismal service. RA, GA, Acteens and Mission Friends will conduct a prayer meeting 7 p.m. Wednesday at the church. A church family picnic is planned for 10 a.m., Aug. 25, at Ted Lewis Park.

Mexico where the boy disappears, the camper breaks down, and the girl is trapped in a strangely sinister Mexican town. This is the story line of "Incident at La Junta" by Oliver Lange, author of "Vandenberg."

Report Bakers Earn The Most In Bread Costs

WASHINGTON (AP) — Who makes the most from the price of a loaf of bread? Bakers do, according to a government report.

A bakers' organization last week decried high wheat costs in predicting higher bread prices and short supplies. Their statement was called "hysterical pressure" by Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz, who contends that farm prices represent only a few cents of the retail price of a loaf of bread.

Bakers, it seems, get more than half the loaf, although recent gains have favored the retailer.

An Agriculture Department situation report on wheat earlier this month said there was a 1.1-cent rise between January and June in the average cost of a one-pound loaf of bread, to 26.2 cents.

Human Factor Said Possible In Cambodian Bombing Error

WASHINGTON (AP) — Human error may have caused the bombing accident that took the lives of an estimated 137 Cambodians and injured more than 260 others in the village of Neak Luong Aug. 5, say Pentagon sources. The sources said that Air Force investigators are leaning toward that theory. It appears "somebody did not do his job right," said the source.

Scattered Storms Hit Some Areas

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Fair weather was the general rule today but there were exceptions as thunderstorms broke out over widely scattered locations around the nation. Showers and thunderstorms dotted the map from the Great Basin to the northern Great Lakes region, along the Gulf coast and in the southern Plateau, where flash flooding occurred and blowing dust reduced visibility. Conception Junction in northwestern Missouri was hit by .75 inches of rain in 30 minutes and winds gusted to 50 miles per hour. Extreme drought conditions in parts of four Northwestern states caused an outbreak of 15 major forest fires and scores of smaller blazes in recent weeks.

Up to 27,000 acres of forest lands were ablaze in Washington, Oregon, Idaho and Montana.

The town of LaGrande, Ore., and its population of 10,000 was being threatened and National Guardsmen were helping some residents evacuate their homes.

Temperatures before dawn ranged from 50 near Eureka, Calif., to 93 near Coachella, Calif.

During hibernation, the black bear's temperature and heartbeat remain substantially normal.

Reds Step Up Probing Attacks

SAIGON (AP) — Communist forces have stepped up probing attacks on the outer western and southern defense line of Hue, the South Vietnamese military command said today.

More than 300 mortar rounds were fired Thursday night at infantry and airborne units guarding the approaches of the former imperial capital on the coast 400 miles north of Saigon, the command said.

Ground assaults followed on several government positions, but only one South Vietnamese soldier was killed and four were wounded, the command said. Enemy casualties were not known.

Harassing attacks on Hue's defense perimeter were renewed about two weeks ago after a month-long lull in action around the city.

Heavy fighting was reported Thursday for the second day 15 miles southwest of Saigon. The command claimed 29 Viet Cong were killed during an attack on a ranger camp near Ben Luc. It said the attack was repulsed and the only government casualties were four militiamen wounded.

The government also reported its forces killed 22 men in driving off assaults on several ranger positions around Kontum, in the central highlands 260 miles north of Saigon. Government losses were put at one dead and two wounded.

In Phnom Penh, meanwhile, the Cambodian command said activity by antigovernment forces had dropped sharply in the last 24 hours.

The only significant fighting reported in Cambodia was at Koh Anlong Chen, 12 miles southeast of Phnom Penh. But details were not available.

A military spokesman said government forces were continuing offensive operations on all fronts to consolidate their positions.

Western military attaches in the Cambodian capital reported Thursday that the insurgents had made a limited withdrawal south of Phnom Penh to build up their supplies.

Highly Successful Burglar Blond, Blue-Eyed, 7 Years Old

MIAMI (AP) — Police say a 7-year-old boy has admitted breaking into 21 homes and hauling off as much as $1,600 worth of goods.

The 3-foot-6, blond, blue-eyed child began crying when arrested Thursday and said he had sold most of the loot for hot dog and ice cream money, police reported.

"It breaks my heart, man, I tell you," said Detective Phil Cowart. "He's a helluva cute kid. I felt sorry for him."

Cowart said he first suspected a child in the six-week string of break-ins because of the small windows the burglar climbed through and the nature of the loot taken.

The haul for each of the last three or four burglaries amounted to $300 to $400 in watches, jewelry and portable radios, police said. But police said the boy sold the items for just a few dollars.

The boy's name was not released. Police said his parents are separated and apparently live in New York, leaving him to live with his grandmother here.

The neighborhood ice cream vendor said the boy was "a big spender," Cowart said.

Cowart said that, after his arrest, the boy agreed to point out the burglarized homes while riding around in a police car.

"He sat in the front seat. We bought him a Coke and ice cream and drove him around while he pointed out all the places he hit," Cowart said.

Police recommended counseling and have decided not to prosecute the youth.

Penn Central Files Financial Data

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Penn Central has filed a report with the Interstate Commerce Commission indicating that in the event of liquidation the railroad would be able to meet barely half of its creditors' claims.

The Penn Central says that without government aid, the nation's largest railroad will be forced to start closing down operations on Oct. 31. The ICC has been directed by a federal court in Philadelphia to produce by Oct. 1 a plan to reorganize the railroad on a for-profit basis.

The report submitted to the ICC Thursday showed that liquidation of all Penn Central assets would net $1.9 billion.

The railroad's 27,000 creditors have lodged claims totaling a real value of $2.7 billion.

Once again it is time for the "Fearless Forecaster" to dust off the rabbit's foot, polish the crystal ball, kiss the Shamrock, bow three times to the East and turn our uncanny talent for prognostication to the pro football picture.

In the National Football Conference East, the Over-The-Hill-Gang of the Washington Redskins have done nothing but improve and have to be the pick to repeat. The Dallas Cowboys have to be strong contenders and if they stay healthy could push the Redskins. Lookout for the New York Giants who should be about ready to hit the winning trail again.

The "Pack is Back" at Green Bay and should take the NFL Central Division. A solid quarterback could put the Pack back at the top of the heap and possibly a shot at the Super Bowl. Minnesota should bounce back and a sound Purple Gang just might upset the Pack.

The Los Angeles Rams and the San Francisco 49ers once again will battle for the NFC West title. The addition of John Hadl at quarterback, coupled with a strong forward wall and a fine running game, makes the Rams the favorites. But lookout for the Atlanta Falcons who are just about ready to take it all.

"Stick with the champion till he is no longer champion" holds true in the race in the American Football Conference East. So it will once again be the Miami Dolphins on top. The only other contender in the East has to be the New York Jets but it will take a healthy Joe Namath to sink the Dolphins.

The Oakland Raiders have the material to repeat in the AFC West but Daryle Lamonica will have to stay healthy. Two ex-Colts, Johnny Unitas and John Mackey, could be just the combination that could make the San Diego Chargers a solid contender. If both have a good year, the Chargers might be the team to take it all.

Despite the fact that the area is loaded with Cincinnati Bengal and Cleveland Brown fans, the Pittsburgh Steelers are becoming a power and this should be their year in the AFC Central Division. The lads from the "smokey city" are on the verge of becoming the power in pro football and this could be the season they put it all together. The Browns and the Bengals will battle it out for the second spot in the division.

If the fates fail to smile on our predictions and things don't work out, don't bother to call because we are having the phone disconnected in our bomb shelter.

Our "Fearless" forecast—Bengals offense will beat the Browns defense. . .

Until next time, have a nice day—be a good sport.

Interleague Baseball Play Nixed

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Major League baseball fell one vote short—the tie-breaking vote Commissioner Bowie Kuhn chose not to cast—Thursday of adopting interleague play in 1974.

Kuhn, who favors limited interleague play, cited but declined to explain a challenge by the National League of his legal powers to cast the vote. However, he said he was "not precluding the possibility of casting it in the future," if the legal question is resolved.

The impasse occurred as expected when American League owners and officials unanimously favored interleague play and the National League voted unanimously against it during the closing session of the majors' annual summer meetings.

Kuhn announced creation of a "special blue ribbon steering committee" of five members, including two owners in each league and himself, which he said will have broad authority to make recommendations on all baseball matters.

The committee will report at the majors' winter meetings in Houston. Its members were not immediately named.

Bud Selig, president of the American League's Milwaukee Brewers, was bitterly disappointed but not surprised when interleague play failed to pass.

Carter Gets Starting Spot On Sunday

WILMINGTON, Ohio (AP) — Veteran quarterback Virgil Carter will get the start for the Cincinnati Bengals in Sunday's game with the Cleveland Browns in Columbus, Coach Paul Brown said Thursday.

"He hasn't started yet and we want him to have a chance at it," Brown said. "I don't think it's particularly startling."

Brown chose to go with Carter Sunday despite quarterback Ken Anderson's 11 completions in 12 attempts for 143 yards and one touchdown in the first half Saturday against the Philadelphia Eagles. Brown said Anderson will probably see second-half duty.

Brown also announced he would stick with his big men in the backfield, fullback Charles "Booby" Clark and halfback Doug Dressler. Rookie Ken Duncan will do the punting, he said.

Wide receiver Isaac Curtis, guard Pat Matson, linebacker Bill Peterson, wide receiver Dan Kratzer and wide receiver Steve Kingman will be out of Sunday's game because of injuries, Brown said.

Tight end Al Chandler of Oklahoma, the Bengals' second round draft choice, impressed Brown Thursday. "Chandler is way beyond our fondest hopes as a receiver," Brown said. "A year from now you won't know him."

The Bengals announced the release of safety Rick Seifert of Ohio State Thursday, cutting their roster to 58. Cincinnati had picked up Seifert Tuesday on a look-see basis after he was cut by the New York Jets.

Manager Gene Mauch of the Montreal Expos played with 14 different teams in organized baseball between 1943 and 1959.

Voiceless Fan Behind Browns

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A great fan of the Cleveland Browns will be in the Ohio Stadium bleachers Sunday for the Browns' pre-season outing against the Cincinnati Bengals. But he won't be cheering.

Russell Lehman, 27, of Celina has had to whisper around a paralyzed vocal chord for the last few months.

But that's a small problem. And even limbering up a shoulder hinged with steel pins or teaching his legs to move doesn't faze him.

Russ has undergone major surgery six times since last March when a car suddenly charged into his driving lane, forcing his motorcycle over a curb and into a utility pole.

"Those Browns and Bengals never can wait to get at each other," says Russ, a pair of quick blue eyes twinkling behind wire-rim glasses.

"It's going to be a heck of a scrap," he rasped.

Tickets to the Browns-Bengals match are a dream come true for Russ, who has had a lifelong love affair with football. He played first-string center for Parkway High School near Celina, starting in his sophomore year.

With his good arm, he reached to a trapeze bar above the bed and adjusted his stocky, 5-foot-11 frame. He weighs 160 pounds now, down from

In Pony League Finals

A former Circleville resident, Bruce Oliver, 14, who started his baseball career in the Circleville Little League program is the catcher for the Fort Worth, Tex., team in the National Pony League tournament at Washington, Pa.

His team won the Southern Division title at Marietta, Ga., to gain the berth at Washington. They will play at 6:30 p.m. Saturday.

Oliver is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Oliver. His mother is the former Beebe Bass of Circleville. His grandmother, Mrs. Bernadette Bass, resides at 527 S. Scioto St.

Prairie Gals Meet

Prairie Gals Bowling League will hold its fall meeting 7 p.m. Tuesday at Prairie Lanes.

230 before the crash.

Russ' sister Marilyn got him a ticket for a spot in the stands. He'll watch the action with a doctor and another staff member from University Hospital.

Sunday will be Russ' first view of the traditionally hardfought battle between the Browns and Bengals. But the game may be more than therapy.

After Russ' broken bones were set and wrapped in casts, things got worse. An artery burst. His spleen had to be removed. And he suffered from recurrent fever.

"We watched him through all his ups and downs. The nurses pull for Russ more than anyone, because he's been with us so long," but it took something special to pull him through," said nurse Elaine Connelly.

Dr. Minton says Russ' return to health probably had more to do with football than pharmaceuticals.

"I think his looking forward to the game made the clinical difference. At least it was the single most important thing during the months he's been here.

"It's wonderful to see it all come true," Minton said.

Aaron Hits 702nd; Cubs Bombed

By TED MEIER
Associated Press Sports Writer

Hank Aaron doesn't think he will equal Babe Ruth's baseball career home run record of 714 this season. "I don't really think it's possible," the Atlanta slugger said Thursday after he had walloped his 702nd in the eighth inning as the Braves broke loose for nine runs in handing the once proud Chicago Cubs their 11th straight defeat 10-2.

"I'm just not going to play that many more games," Aaron said. "I'd like to hit five or six more and I think that's possible."

The Braves have 38 games left to play, but the 39-year-old Aaron doesn't figure to play in all of them.

Aaron's latest homer, his 29th of the season, came with two on off a 2-2 pitch by Cub pitcher Jack Aker.

"It was the hardest hit I've had in about three weeks," Aaron said. The ball traveled well over 400 feet, disappearing over the left field bleachers in Wrigley Field.

Aaron's homer was his first since

July 31, which at the time put him 13 behind Ruth's record. "I'm happy to get off that 13," Aaron said. "I was beginning to get superstitious about it."

Aaron's homer also brought him to within one of Stan Musial's extra base hit record of 1,377.

Cleveland blasted Kansas City out of first place in the American League West 10-4 and Oakland replaced the Royals in the top spot by defeating Boston 6-3. San Francisco shaded Philadelphia 2-1 in the only other game scheduled Thursday.

Indians 10, Royals 4

Kansas City had beaten Cleveland nine straight times this season, but this time it was the Indians' turn. They unleashed a 16-hit attack and toppled the Royals from first place in the AL West 10-4.

Ron Lolich helped pitcher Dick Tidrow gain his 10th victory by driving in four runs on two doubles and a single. Chris Chambliss contributed a home run and Buddy Bell a triple. Paul Splittorff, a 15-game winner for Kansas City, suffered his seventh defeat.

The defeat dropped the Royals one percentage point behind Oakland.

A's 6, Red Sox 3

Vida Blue showed his 1971 Cy Young Award-winning pitching form in beating the Red Sox on a four-hitter 6-3. He didn't know it at the time, but the victory moved Oakland back into first place in the AL West when Kansas City lost to the Indians in a night game.

Reggie Jackson helped Blue gain his 13th victory against seven defeats by hitting two homers good for four RBI. Jackson now has 29 HRs for the season.

Giants 2, Phillies 1

Tom Bradley, with relief help from Elias Sosa in the ninth, won his 10th game as the Giants shaded the Phillies 2-1. Sosa got the last three outs to preserve Bradley's first victory since July 13.

The Giants tallied the winning run in the fourth on Gary Matthews' single, a stolen base, an error and Gary Thomasson's sacrifice fly.

Bengals Pin Hopes On Anderson

CINCINNATI (AP) — Marion Motley and Jimmy Brown spoiled Cincinnati Bengals Coach Paul Brown. It isn't likely he'll find a Motley or Brown in 1973, but if plans work out, the coach may have what he's been looking for: a backfield of bull-sized backs.

And it may be the only backfield made up of ex-tight ends in the National Football League.

"There's a big advantage in big backs," said Brown. "Look at Miami and Green Bay. The big backs can take you a long way and we need one bad," said Brown, who is the NFL's oldest active coach. He turns 65 next month.

Brown likes the looks of 12th round draft choice, Charles "Booby" Clark, who has been impressive in training camp. Clark, a 6-foot-2, 240-pound tight end from Bethune-Cookman (Fla.) College, is a brutal blocker and has blazing speed for a big man.

Bills And Redskins Clash

BUFFALO (AP) — The Buffalo Bills will unveil a new backfield lineup and a new stadium tonight in their pre-season home opener against the Washington Redskins.

The largest sports crowd in western

New York history may be on hand for the event. The new 80,000-seat stadium in suburban Orchard Park, the largest in the National Football League, is expected to be sold out.

Buffalo Coach Lou Saban is expected

Muhlmann Again Ready For Action

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — Place-kicker Horst Muhlmann knelt sweltering along the sideline Thursday watching the Cincinnati Bengals practice, alternately blinking and looking blank.

Muhlmann, at 32, is the oldest player on the team and continually leads the team in scoring with his field goals. Last year he scored 111 points.

"I don't pay a whole lot of attention to the game," said the resident of Gelsenkirchen, West Germany. "I mean I know what a pass play is or a run. Mostly, I just keep track of the kicking situations because that's what I'm involved in."

Horst had special visitors Wednesday. Former Astronaut Neil Armstrong, now a teacher at the University of Cincinnati, brought his sons Rick and Mike to camp.

Rick is trying out as a place kicker at Lebanon, Ohio high school and wanted some pointers. "Ja, sure," said Horst, and led the trio off to the kicking area for an hour or so.

Returning to the sideline, Muhlmann began alternately rubbing a piece of ice on his left ankle and biting off chunks. The hot weather bothers the former professional soccer player who said he can kick with either foot.

"It's best to concentrate on the right foot though. In this heat, the way I step on my left foot as I kick makes the ankle sore and swell. It's nothing, I always have it."

Muhlmann's wife and two children will join him here in two weeks, he said, which brought up the problem of money exchange between the United States and Germany during the current dollar crisis.

"I've lost a lot of money," he complained. "I don't try to exchange it anymore. I just keep it here."

"I keep track of the exchange rates every day. It's a bad situation."

Muhlmann came originally to the U.S. in the 1960s with other European soccer players to play for newly established American teams.

But the sport never caught on, he said, and he and others switched to American football.

"I'll keep playing as long as I score," said Muhlmann, noting that once he stops scoring, he'll be out of a job.

Meanwhile, he doesn't take any chances on injuries and laughs about the spectacle of him running for the side lines after kickoffs, hotly pursued by blockers.

"That doesn't bother me," he grinned. "I'm not going to get hurt."

Farmers And Sportsmen Hold .22 NRA Rifle Match

An NRA .22 Rifle Match was held at the Pickaway County Fairgrounds outdoor range 6:30 p.m. Thursday preceding the regular meeting of the Pickaway Farmers and Sportsmen Assn.

During the business session which followed, William Clark Jr., president, informed members electric service would be installed this month at the new recreation area on the Children's Home farm.

Dick Neblette reported the Gold Cup Trophy match held Aug. 4-5 at Camp Sherman Range near Chillicothe was a success. The club plans to sponsor high power matches at Camp Sherman during 1974 for Tri State Shooters. Neblette was appointed high power rifle committee chairman for 1973.

The wild game banquet held each year in December will begin this year charging for the dinner. Proceeds will be used for club projects at the new club recreation area.

A work session will be held 9 a.m. Sunday. Members will replace the bridge washed out by recent rains and finish seeding the range area.

All locks at the outdoor range building, the indoor building and access gates at the new recreation area are the same it was announced by Clark. Members who have not paid a key deposit will be required to check out new keys in order to have access to the areas. Only active members may check out keys. Active members are classified by attending club functions and work sessions, donating at least eight hours each year to a club project and having their dues paid.

Bonnie Bryant, former semi-pro softball player from Oakland, Calif., is the only left-handed golfer on the Ladies Professional Golf Association tour.

Clark's success would leave last year's leading rusher Essex Johnson, who had 825 yards, fresh for spot duty, a role Brown feels would add dimension to the sometimes-sputtering Bengal attack.

But Coach Brown's main hope this year for improving an 8-6 record lies in progress from third-year quarterback Ken Anderson.

Anderson, now 23, broke Greg Cook's club passing record last year with 1,918 yards and hand the lowest interception percentage. He allowed only seven out of 301 passes.

Virgil Carter, at backup, lends stability with his five years' experience. "He has a knack of bringing the team together and getting things done," praised the coach.

The Bengals moved to improve their speed at the flanks by acquiring Charlie Joiner of Houston at mid-season last year and went for more sprint speed in the draft.

Isaac Curtis, a 9.3 sprinter at San Diego State, was the first of three straight receivers selected in the draft.

"We needed more speed on the outside," said Brown. Former All-Pro tight end Bob Trumpy and split end Chip Myers, who caught a team record 57 catches last year, give Cincinnati excellent receivers.

The Bengals appear equally well-stocked in lineman, due to heavy drafting in that direction the first five years.

The offensive line is a plus, with veterans Bob Johnson, Vernon Holland, Stan Walters, Pat Matson, Howard Fest and Rufus Mayes making up a solid base.

The defense, though still young, should again be Cincinnati's strength. With Mike Reid, an All-Pro defensive tackle at age 25, heading the battle-tested squad, the Bengals could be even better than last year when they ranked third among the NFL's 26 clubs.

Joining Reid as top defenders are linebacker Bill Bergey, safety Tommy Casonova and defensive back Lemar Parrish.

"We will be a better team," said Brown. "How that translates into wins and losses remains to be seen."

Minor All-Stars Top Shadywood

Circleville's Little League Minor All-Stars downed Shadywood Red, 10-6, Thursday to gain their second straight win in the Hilliard tournament.

Circleville will meet the Hilliard All-Stars 8 p.m. Saturday at Hilliard.

Rod Bumgarner and Jack Heeter combined to hurl the win for Circleville. They gave up seven hits, walked seven and fanned 12. Crabble and Riley shared mound duties for Shadywood. They allowed 10 hits, walked four and struck out four.

A big eight-run third inning put the game on ice for the lads from Roundtown.

Jeff Bloomfield, Jerry Ogan and Bob Brown each had a pair of singles for Circleville while Bob Steele, Bumgarner, Brian Davis and Tim Woods had a single apiece.

Two former Cincinnati Red players, Frank Robinson and Vada Pinson, are now outfielders with the California Angels in the American League.

HOUSTON (AP) — The Galveston County sheriff plans to search a stretch of beach today for graves of more possible victims in the nation's worst confirmed mass murder.

Sheriff J. B. Kline said he had no specific information about where any bodies might be buried but he owed it to parents of missing boys to make an effort.

The bodies of 27 boys and young men slain in an alleged homosexual torture ring were found in graves on an adjacent beach in Chambers and

Williamsfield Man Wins Rifle Match

CAMP PERRY, Ohio (AP)— Ronald Troyer of Williamsfield, Ohio, won his third national high power rifle championship Thursday with a 199 out of a possible 200 points in the final match.

His total of 1,573 points in the eight matches was only one point below the match record.

He won the national championship in 1970 and 1971 and was the runnerup last year.

University Games Swing Into High Gear

MOSCOW (AP) — Track and field competition at the World University Games swings into high gear today and American athletes will be bidding for some gold medals that so far have been swept up by the Soviet Union.

In Thursday's opening events, the Soviets picked up four golds and one bronze to a single silver medal for the United States—won by Kathy Schmidt of Long Beach, Calif. in the javelin throw.

Sparky Claims Dock Ellis Hurls Spitters

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — Add Pittsburgh Pirate pitcher Dock Ellis to those accused of throwing the spitball. The Cincinnati Reds, who beat Ellis Wednesday night 1-0, claim he should go right to the top of the list of alleged spit ball throwers.

They say his lack of deception makes Ellis' spitters different from those of others.

Cincinnati Reds Manager Sparky Anderson called to plate umpire Satch Davidson several times Wednesday night to check Ellis, but got nowhere. When Davidson checked Ellis in the second inning, the umpire said he found nothing.

Jack Billingham, who shut out the Pirates Wednesday for his seventh shutout of the year, tying a club record, said he knows all about spitball deception.

"When I was with the Dodgers, they sent me to the instructional league one winter to learn to throw the spitter," Billingham said. "They thought I needed a trick pitch."

"I couldn't handle it, though. I'd get all nervous and gripped the ball too tight. It would bounce half way to the plate."

Reds' second-baseman Joe Morgan said he saw Ellis only throw one unadorned pitch the entire game. "It's not like the other guys' spitters, because he can control it and throw it for strikes," he said.
The Reds, winners of 35 of their last 46 games, continue their chase of the Los Angeles Dodgers tonight in New York. Cincinnati's Don Gullett will seek his 15th victory against the Mets' John Matlack, 9-14.

Outfielder Pete Rose and first-baseman Tony Perez both carry long hitting streaks into the game. Rose has hit safely in 17 straight games; Perez in 12. Perez has also driven in runs in Cincinnati's last seven games.

Dick Lotz Takes Lead In USI Golf

SUTTON, Mass. (AP) — Dick Lotz was out of the woods, Bruce Devlin was out of the tournament and Ben Crenshaw was off and running going into today's second round of the $200,000 USI Golf Classic.

"I've been in the woods so long nobody remembers who I am," the slump-ridden Lotz said Thursday after taking the first round lead with a hot-putting 67, five-under-par on the 7,212-yard Pleasant Valley Golf Club course.

Devlin, the skinny Australian veteran who won this title last year, was disqualified for taking an improper drop. He signed for a 71, but played the ball from the wrong place after going into a hazard on the 15th hole.

And Crenshaw, the most highly-touted youngster since Jack Nicklaus, got off and running as a pro with a 71 that he called "very mediocre—just another round of golf."

It was his first round as a professional.

Lotz, who has been in a deep slump since winning two titles and more than $125,000 in 1970, held a one-stroke lead over Bert Yancey and Rik Massingale, tied at 68.

Faraway Bay Winner Of Scarlet, Gray Cup

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)— Faraway Bay captured the Scarlet and Gray cup for three-year-old pacers Thursday night at Scioto Downs by a length.

Woman Seeks 2 Siberian Reindeer

MOSCOW (AP) — Santa Claus was originally a Russian, so why shouldn't the Soviet Union let Sue Fortune have those two Siberian reindeer?

"I've gone through the various bureaus and am now up to the commissioner of zoos," said harried Mrs. Fortune of Auburndale, Mass. "If necessary, I'll take the matter all the way to Brezhnev."

Leonid Brezhnev is chief of the Soviet Communist party and they don't come any higher in the land of the Hammer and Sickle.

Mrs. Fortune, an attractive, red-haired widow in her 40s, is seeking to buy a pair of white Siberian reindeer for two of her projects back in the U.S. — Santa's Workshop in North Pole, N.Y., and Santa's Operation Toylift.

"They are magnificent animals, and the only place you can find them are here in Russia," Mrs. Fortune said. "We have about 45 reindeer in all, but we want these Siberian reindeer."

"I am running into obstacles because Christmas is a religious holiday and the Russians are sensitive about anything with a religious connotation."

Mrs. Fortune came to Moscow loaded with Santa Claus legend to try to break down the Soviets.

"I try to tell the Russians that there is no need to be edgy, that Santa Claus actually was a Russian before he was a little fat man with whiskers and a round belly," she said.

Mrs. Fortune is in Moscow as one of the American administrators in the World University Games. But her avocation is Santa Claus.

Her late husband, Harold, was cofounder with Julian J. Reiss of Santa's Workshop, an attraction for children on White Face Mountain 10 miles from Lake Placid. Santa's Operation Toylift is a charity fund that takes Christmas — including real reindeer and whiskered Santa Clauses — to handicapped and needy children throughout the United States.

"We have Alaskan, Japanese and English reindeer," Mrs. Fortune said. "We must have a pair of Siberians. They are bigger than most reindeer, have two stomachs and chew a cud like a cow. If I can get through to Mr. Brezhnev I think I can convince him."

Efforts Aimed At Saving Endangered Bald Ibises

BIRECIK, Turkey (AP) — Perched on a rock ledge in the middle of this small town on the Euphrates River, a few dozen ungainly and slowmoving birds are living out a tragedy.

They are probably the last bald ibises in the world, and if they and their young cannot be saved, an ornithologist says, the species is "living its last days on the face of the earth."

In 1953, when other breeding areas beside Birecik still existed, there were 1,300 birds nesting here. By 1967 the number had fallen to 50 pairs, and in 1970 there were 36. Only 26 pairs arrived for the 1972 season, and this year there are 25 pairs.

German photographer and ornithologist Udo Hirsch, 30, lives in Birecik and is trying to save the birds with the help of the Swiss-based World Wildlife Fund.

The cause for the dramatic drop in numbers in the 1950s, he says, was probably the general introduction at that time of chemical insecticides in the area. The birds exist mainly on a diet of insects, largely locusts and grasshoppers.

The bird is faced with other problems as well. House-building in Birecik has brought the nearest roof only a few feet away from the breeding ledge, and the constant flapping of laundry, the shouting of children and often enough the deliberate baiting of the birds and the stealing of their eggs — which have a black market value of up to $700 each — have all taken their toll. From the houses built on top of the cliff rubbish was tipped down below, sending eggs and young tumbling off the ledge, which in places was as narrow as seven inches.

Last winter, while the birds were absent (probably in Ethiopia, although their winter quarters are not certain) Udo Hirsch chiselled out the ledge so that the narrowest part is now 2½ feet wide. He also had a wall built on top of the cliff, preventing rubbish from being thrown onto the ledge. He is trying to stop building work encroaching from below the ledge.

"Essentially this is not a bird problem, but a people problem," he said. "If the building can't be stopped then the bald ibis will die."

The widening of the ledge and the construction of the upper wall have vastly improved the survival rate of eggs so far this year. Last year almost 90 per cent of the eggs and the chicks were lost, and only seven or eight new birds survived to migrate southwards last July. This year 75 eggs were laid, of which only six were lost.

The bald ibis, Geronticus Eremita, is a wading bird with a long neck and legs, both of them red. It has a prominent growth of hair like feathers hanging down the neck, but otherwise no feathers on its head. The body plumage is black.

The bird has a long history, and it may have been referred to by the Roman naturalist Pliny, who in the first century AD reported seeing ibises in the Alps. It was known in Germany and Switzerland in the 15th century, when Bishop Leonard of Salzburg forbade its shooting. Apparently he was not motivated by a conservationist's zeal, but enjoyed hunting the slow-moving bird with his falcons. The bird disappeared from Europe in the middle of the 18th century.

After then the only breeding grounds recorded were in Turkey, Syria and Iraq.

Now the nesting grounds in the rest of the Middle East, including one other in Turkey, have disappeared, and Birecik's reduced numbers are the only survivors. A few years ago the construction of a new road west of the town drove the birds from their main nesting area in Birecik, below the castle walls. Now the rock ledge, two-thirds of the way up the 6-foot sandstone cliff on which many of the town's houses perch, is the last meeting site.

SKYLAB ROCKET MOVES TO LAUNCH PAD—The Saturn 1B rocket for Skylab is transported to the launch complex at Cape Kennedy, Fla. In background, left, is the service gantry which will be moved around the rocket once it is in position on the pad.

NEW NEED FOR AN OLD SKILL—Blacksmith Robert Calimer checks his progress on a brand in his shop in Waynesboro, Pa. Brands are in demand again due to incidents of cattle rustling. Branding is one method used by ranchers to identify their cattle.

FARMING GOVERNOR—North Dakota Gov. Arthur Link walks away from a combine loading barley into a truck on his farm. Link left Bismarck, the state capital, for his farm, to take care of the harvest.

Letters We Luv

we read these bank ads about saving money for peace of mind. Well, here's a piece of my mind. It really works! just saving $10 per week, in 3 months we've got $130 in the bank plus interest. we can think of plenty of ways to spend it but we're not going to. just knowing it's there makes me feel good.

Increasing savings not only relieve anxieties, but earn a high 5 per cent on passbook savings.

CARROLL RICHTER'S HOROSCOPE
from the Carroll Richter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A wonderful day and evening for you to swiftly put in motion some course of action difficult during the busy week, but possible today because you have the free time, or access to others and to places where you can pioneer in some new arrangement that can bring you tremendous advancement.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Ideal day for planning how to gain your most cherished desires and taking the initial steps in such directions. Have any treatments necessary to improve your health. Become a more dynamic you.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Get into the activities that will make the future more prosperous and satisfying so you need not worry so much. Use your hunches, which are good now. Don't deliberate too much and miss out on action required.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Get in touch with friends who can give you information you need and extend any favors you want. Attending some group affair can bring excellent results now. Dress in right style.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Plan time for pleasing higher-ups and gaining their support for the future. Situations develop that show you how to become more successful. Take it easy tonight. Enjoy kin.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) This is the right day to take that little trip to get the data that means much to you, but has been hard to get before. Make some new associate who can be helpful to you in the future. Drive with care.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Ideal day to keep promises you have made to others and add to your prestige, good credit. Don't disappoint the one you love. Show you are a thoughtful and courteous person. Gain affection.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Now that you comprehend a plan which an associate has, be sure to cooperate with him and get fine results. You have to act more quickly if you succeed where a civic matter is concerned.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) If you let fellow workers in on your plans, they will cooperate with mutually excellent results. Find the right articles to add to present wardrobe and look more modish and charming.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Being with persons at places you mutually like can make this a most interesting and delightful day. Thoughtfulness toward mate brings excellent results. Show that it is both your duty and pleasure to do so.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Get busy and do those things at home that improve both the house and the harmony that should be increased there. Get rid of the cause of friction. Stop being so hardheaded and show your human side more.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Problems can be handled satisfactorily now since you are thinking clearly and logically. A good talk with regular associates improves daily routines quickly. Get your heads together early.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) A good day to think over how to add to your present income appreciably so you need not worry so much about money in the future. Sit down with an influential person you know. Ask for advice, which can prove invaluable.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be one of those delightful young people whose mind is buzzing with ideas of all kinds and who wants to put them in action right now, so teach early to pick out the best ones and then plan carefully every step before doing anything about them. This will lead to success, otherwise nothing will be accomplished. Make sure you give the finest education you can afford. There can be fame here, also.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

Acoustices Play Important Part In Design Of New Concert Halls

BOSTON (AP) — What's the most important instrument in a concert hall? A violin, cello, drum or piano? It's the hall itself.

When musicians say they play a certain hall, this stage term should be taken literally. The acoustics in each hall can determine the quality and tone of the music played there, and even determine the selections a group chooses to play.

Engineers look at concert halls as giant sound instruments and at the design of these instruments for certain effects. Concert-hall design was one of the topics discussed at a recent meeting of the Acoustical Society of America here.

Dr. Leo L. Beranek, a director of Bolt Beranek and Newman, Inc., of Cambridge, said he tells architects to behave like designers of musical instruments when planning concert halls.

Beranek, whose acoustic consulting firm has helped design many halls around the world, said architects have to keep some similarity to proven design and restrain some of their more radical creative impulses if concert halls are going to be more than just pretty boxes full of sound.

"But architects can't build on the past except in a general way," Beranek said. If they want to do more than copy existing successful halls, he said, the designer must make the hall flexible enough to incorporate new techniques to get the desired sound.

One of the factors taken into account in concert-hall design is reverberation, or the time in which a sound bounces back and forth in the hall. Beranek said certain kinds of music are best heard at different reverberation rates.

For an orchestra playing Bach, a two-second reverberation is optimum; for organ music in a large hall, up to six seconds is considered satisfactory; and in an opera hall, where words are sung, a one-and-a-half-second reverb is considered good.

Beranek said the amount of reverberation depends on the cubic volume of the room and what sound-absorbing materials, including the audience, are present.

A designer can get the desired reverberation rate by putting the ceiling at a certain height to increase room volume or putting in such devices as curtains, which can be closed or opened depending on the music played.

Beranek said the great-sounding halls of the world, among which he included Boston Symphony Hall, Carnegie Hall and the Great Hall in Vienna, are based on tried-and-true designs which have evolved over centuries. But he added that new ones designed with modern acoustical techniques in mind, such as the hall in Indianapolis, can be extremely good.

"We don't know how to design everything perfectly on paper yet," he said. "We simply can't account for all the variables because we are not precise enough in our knowledge to do so. So we must either build with the idea of later modifying the hall to get the right sound or copy successful halls."

Robert Savage Named As BGSU Trustee

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Robert C. Savage, executive vice president of John F. Savage and Associates, Inc., of Toledo, has been named to the Bowling Green State University Board of Trustees by Gov. John J. Gilligan.

Savage succeeds the late Robert C. Winzeler.

Chilean Strikers Defy Government

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP) — Striking truckers and their families stood guard over their trucks in fields across Chile today, vowing to fight if the army tries to take over their vehicles and end the 22-day-old transport strike crippling the Chilean economy.

Professional workers, including pilots for the government airline, doctors and dentists, said they also would strike if there was any violence.

Riot police and soldiers stood by at some of the improvised truck parks, but there was no indication when President Salvador Allende's government might order them to try to get the trucks back on the road.

One group of soldiers made a "symbolic" seizure of 600 trucks at Puente Alto, 10 miles south of Santiago, but their owners had removed such vital parts as carburetors and spark plugs. The soldiers did not attempt to replace them.

The government had said the army would be ordered to man the trucks if the 40,000 owners did not end the strike by 4 p.m. Thursday. The strikers rejected the ultimatum and said they would not start hauling freight again until the government agreed to their demands for higher freight rates, new trucks and more imported spare parts.

Strike leaders claimed that the government is channeling new trucks produced in the government plants and spare parts to the public transportation network to drive the private truckers out of business and advance Allende's socialist program.

"We will defend ourselves and our vehicles even if we have to die," the truckers said in a statement.

President Allende in a radio speech called the strike "subversive and seditious" and accused its leaders of attempting to destroy the economy.

Guards Face Dismissal

LUCASVILLE, Ohio (AP) — State officials have begun steps to suspend or dismiss about 175 guards at the Southern Ohio Correctional Facility for refusing to work in support of a disciplined colleague.

Prison Supt. W. J. Whealon said the action became necessary when the guards "ignored established disagreement procedures" and conducted an illegal walkout.

Meanwhile, the Citizens Task Force on Corrections plans to report next week to Gov. John J. Gilligan on conditions uncovered at the troubled maximum security prison.

Three members spent 7½ hours Thursday interviewing guards, chaplains, and other employees of the state's largest prison.

Last week, five members toured the facility and talked with about 150 inmates who had complained of harsh treatment since the shooting of two guards July 24.

Gilligan praised Whealon and the Ohio Department of Rehabilitation and Corrections for "decisive action against the employees participating in an unauthorized work stoppage."

Gilligan said, "State officials have offered to discuss the complaints of those employees on the condition they return to work. They have refused."

"As far as we are concerned, the employees who are refusing to report to work are guilty of insubordination that will not be tolerated—particularly by employees in sensitive areas such as correctional institutions."

The walkout began Wednesday afternoon when a corrections officer refused to guard a cellblock by himself. The guards contended there were 80 inmates in the area, and Whealon said there were 11 honor inmates.

Negotiations to settle the dispute between the state and the Teamster Union Local 413, representing the striking guards, ended abruptly Thursday.

Union representatives walked out when Dr. Joseph Palmer, deputy director of corrections, refused to reconsider the suspension of the guard, Ronald Boggs. Palmer said Boggs will receive a full hearing, if he decides to return to work.

The chief of the Ohio Civil Service Employees Association called the Teamster walkout "ridiculous and ill-timed." The association and the Teamsters have been vying for representation among the prison's 400 guards.

James Marshall, OCSEA executive secretary, said the walkout "is only serving to feed the fire of instability at Lucasville and further endanger the safety of our correctional officers who are working inside Lucasville at this very moment."

Whealon said the 1,050-inmate prison has been stable and secure during the walkout.

ROBERT W. TURNER

The Circleville DuPont Plant today announced the promotions of two employees.

Robert W. Turner, Route 1, Stoutsville, was promoted to the position of associate engineer and Charles E. Knapp Jr., Chillicothe, was promoted to the position of foreman in maintenance department.

Turner joined DuPont April 1, 1959 as a process operator in manufacturing. He was subsequently promoted to mechanic, design draftsman and designer.

He has received his diploma from the Famous Artists School in Commercial and Fine Art, is a past member of Circleville city council and a past member of the Amanda-Clearcreek Board of Education. The family attends Community United Methodist Church where he is a Sunday school teacher. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Wendell C. Turner, Watt St.

Knapp joined DuPont Nov. 23, 1953 as an instrument mechanic trainee. He has since been promoted to mechanic and then planner in maintenance department.

He and his wife Blanche, are the parents of three daughters, Kimberly Lynn, Toni Lee and Kristen Ann, and one son, Nathan Edward.

He is a veteran, having been honorably discharged from the United States Marines as a sergeant, a member of the Chillicothe BPO Elks Lodge, the American Legion and of UCT.

Canada leads the world in the production of nickel and zinc, and is second in the production of asbestos, gypsum, sulphur and uranium.

Woman Listed 'Critical'

Mrs. Agnes McAdams, 78, passenger injured in a car-truck crash at the intersection of Route 22 and 56 west 10:59 a.m. Thursday is listed in "critical" condition and intensive care at University Hospital, Columbus.

According to the report taken by Sheriff's Deputy Bob Hoover, Mrs. McAdams received severe leg and arm injuries and possible internal injuries.

Roy E. McAdams, 78, driver of the car, was released from the hospital after being treated for shock.

The accident is still under investigation with charges to be filed.

McAdams was stopped for the stop sign at Route 56 when he pulled into the path of a semi-truck driven by Thomas Luke Seckerson, 37, New Albany.

Seckerson was travelling west on Route 22 when he tried to avoid hitting the McAdams car.

South Central Power Elects Board, Officers

Member-consumers, voting at the 37th Annual Meeting of the South Central Power Company, Thursday returned four incumbent trustees to office for three-year terms.

Re-elected were Russell Grice, District 11, of Washington Court House; Glen Hastings, District 10, of Hillsboro; Raymond Spitler, District 5, of Pleasantville, and John W. Eakin, District 4, of Canal Winchester.

In a special board of trustees meeting called after the annual meeting was concluded, the board re-elected the following officers: John W. Eakin, president; Charles Wyckoff, vice president; Carl Griggs, assistant vice president; Harold Kline, secretary; Charles Blackburn, treasurer, and O. Edmond Leckrone, assistant treasurer.

For John W. Eakin, 71, the election marked the start of his final three-year term of the Board of Trustees. Under South Central's Code of Regulations, an individual cannot run for election to the Board after he passes his 72nd birthday, a milestone Eakin will reach next February. He was first elected to the Board in 1937, became President of the Board in 1946, thus holding the position for 27 years—the longest tenure of anyone in the 37 year history of the company.

Deputy Recovers Stolen Vehicle

Pickaway County Sheriff's Deputy Billy Huffman recovered a stolen vehicle 7:02 p.m. Thursday.

The Sheriff's Department was called to a burning truck at the Gance Bridge on the Mt. Sterling-Commercial Point Road.

Checking the vehicle, Huffman noticed the truck had no license tags and was stolen.

Edgar Muncy, possible owner of the vehicle was notified.

Patrolman Captures Escapee Following High Speed Chase

An early morning high speed chase, ending at Chillicothe, resulted in the capture of a 15-year-old escapee from the Training Institute of the Ohio Youth Commission at Columbus.

Patrolman Ted Coon, officer of the Highway Patrol stationed at the local post, captured Robert Adkins, 15, following a chase at 1:30 this morning at speeds reaching 118 miles per hour.

The boy was charged in Pickaway County Juvenile Court with taking a vehicle without the owner's consent and reckless operation. He spent the night in the city jail before his release at 8 a.m. to a OYC officer.

Ptl. Coon reported that he attempted to stop the youth this morning when he was southbound on Route 23 near State Route 361. When Coon turned on the patrol car's red flashers, the youth accelerated and attempted to out-distance the officer, driving at speeds in excess of 100 miles an hour.

Adkins tried to ram the patrol car as Coon attempted to pull alongside his car and force him to the berm. Losing control of his car at Eastern Ave. in Chillicothe, the youth jumped out and tried to escape on foot.

The trooper apprehended the boy where he was hiding in a ditch adjacent to the northbound lanes of Route 23.

Further investigation revealed the auto had been stolen from the Westland Shopping Center parking lot and belonged to Carol Curtis, of Columbus. The vehicle was not damaged.

Homestead Correction

An article released by State Auditor Joseph T. Ferguson appearing in the Wednesday edition of The Herald was incorrect according to Pickaway County Auditor Marvin Rhodes.

Concerning the homestead exemption Ferguson's release stated the filing for the exemption must be between January and the first week of June each year.

Mrs. Rhodes says the filing for exemptions in Pickaway County is between January and Aug. 1.

Only homeowners, 65 years of age or older, are eligible for homestead exemptions, providing their annual income is less than $10,000. The exemptions range from 70 per cent of taxable value of the property for income under $2,000; 60 per cent for incomes under $4,000; 50 per cent for incomes under $6,000 and 40 per cent for incomes under $10,000.

Ferguson's release stated the annual income to be eligible for homestead exemptions was $8,000, which was incorrect for Pickaway County Residents.
